

The Book of Life

Glossary of The True Meanings of the Ancient Egyptian Hieroglyphs

Page by Page version Much Faster and Easier to Load on your screen

by Graham

The Egyptian Book of the Dead is composed of several sections, this book will deal mainly with the Papyrus of Henefer, and the Papyrus of Ani, The papyrus of Ani was discovered and is supposed to have been written in 1240 BC. The Papyrus of Hunefer was found at Thebes (Uast) in Egypt and was acquired by the British Museum in 1852 and is supposed to have been written in 1340 BC. The name "The book of the Dead" was attributed to these works by the people that discovered them, due to the belief that they were a collection of mortuary spells created for the those who died. The history of the great body of religious compositions which form the Book of Dead of the ancient Egyptians may conveniently be divided into four periods, which are represented by four versions:--The version which was edited by the priests of the college of Annu (the On of the Bible, and the Heliopolis of the Greeks), and which was based upon a series of texts now lost, but which there is evidence to prove had passed through a series of revisions or editions as early as the period of the Vth dynasty. This version was, so far as we know, always written in hieroglyphics, and may be called the Heliopolitan version. Five copies of The Book of The Dead are inscribed upon the walls of the chambers and passages in the pyramids of kings of the Vth and VIth dynasties at Sakkβra and sections of it are found inscribed upon tombs, sarcophagi, coffins, stelae and papyri from the XIth dynasty to about A.D. 200. In this book we will only mainly concern ourselves with the version found in Saqqara.

After studying the Book of the Dead for a long period of time and several other books related to Ancient Egypt. The Book of The Dead in my opinion was translated in a way which leaves out many of the symbols which we see in the hieroglyphs. The method of translation in use today only relates to the Rosetta stone which is a series of Egyptian heiroglyphs beside other writings of other languages. In comparison they translated the hieroglyphs. The truth of the matter is that the Ancient Egyptian hieroglyphs are not only to be read or sounded out as we do today. They are also a book about nature and the forces of nature, as nature encompasses all elements of our universe. Their scientific and natural language or symbolic language was the absolute best way to communicate to future generations on Earth what they learnt and what they knew. Each symbol can mean several things. While some actually do mean what is taught to us today in Egyptology classes, those same symbols can also have different meanings. The intelligence of this language is within this context of writing one symbol and having it mean several things. It is as if they are writing a book which when read correctly it can tell you 3 or 4 different stories. The pictures used and writing symbols used portray shapes and symbols found in nature. Each picture or symbol should be carefully studied and compared with the symbol beside it and hence the story is unfolding. The deep intelligence of such a language and method of communication is astounding. It is also the best possible way to communicate the message that it communicates. It is a message for future inhabitants of our planet. Who better to understand the message than those who live with and around the plants, animals, shapes, and other symbolized representations contained in Egypt.

Through nature they are talking to us, they were not a naive cult as we perceive them today. They were extremely intelligent . An overzealous attitude is not the case when stating such a deep meaning for these pictures and symbols, as the megalithic constructions and designs contained in Egypt are a testimony to the strange sciences practiced in the remote past. To deny this fact, is to deny our own right to know the truth, whatever that truth may be.

The images in the book of the dead are my main concern, the texts that are contained in books available around the world that describe the pictures in the book of the dead are often false in my view. For the sake of not repeating myself again and again, I will refrain from using the terms in my opinion or in my view as much as possible. I invite you to use your own judgement when reading this book and any book which has theories that are as important as these.

Throughout the years many people have been to Egypt, intrigued by the pyramids, the architecture, and the grandeur, and amazing construction feats to be seen in Egypt. But one of the main thoughts embedded in the subconscious mind of those who are intrigued by Ancient Egypt is a deep unexplainable connection with what they are seeing. Something that runs much deeper than stone engravings on walls. A sense of home, a sense of understanding, a deep intelligence is embedded in the stone carvings. Something that those who visualize these monuments and hieroglyphs feel somewhere deep inside of themselves. After a lot of study and honestly taking the world for what it is regardless of the proclamations of those telling us what to think and what to believe, I have decided to study the evidence myself. I believe that what I have discovered is absolutely beautiful and a great benefit to all of us who seek to understand who we are and where we came from.

In this chapter which is the main chapter of this book and the most important one, you will see the pictures painted and carved on walls in Egypt thousands of years ago. Accompanying these pictures will be an honest approach to decipher the true meaning of these symbols and pictures we see in Ancient Egypt. My intention in doing this is not to crumble the works of Egyptologists, it is rather to give a more realistic view of what the pictures mean. Freeing your mind of all impossibilities puts your mind in a state where it can see things for what they are without prejudice. I do not however go into blind denial of all logic and common sense. The main state of mind of this presentation is in fact science, and especially common sense. When I refer to common sense I do not mean the common sense that we have all been taught to adopt. You can interpret this last phrase at your own discretion but it's true meaning will be made clear when you see and read the descriptions which accompany the pictures in the following pages.

This book is meant to be a grand realization rather than an exactitude of fact in the hypothesis put forth which accompany each picture. You must leave all prejudice behind when you see the pictures, you must open your heart and spirit to the perfection which indeed does dwell in each of us, that perfection does exist, attainable in a place which we must each discover, this book is meant to help us all discover that place, and to give us all the opportunity to know that this place really does exist.

I invite you to open your heart, your mind, and your total being to what you are about to read. As it may change the way you see yourself, this world, and the things around you.

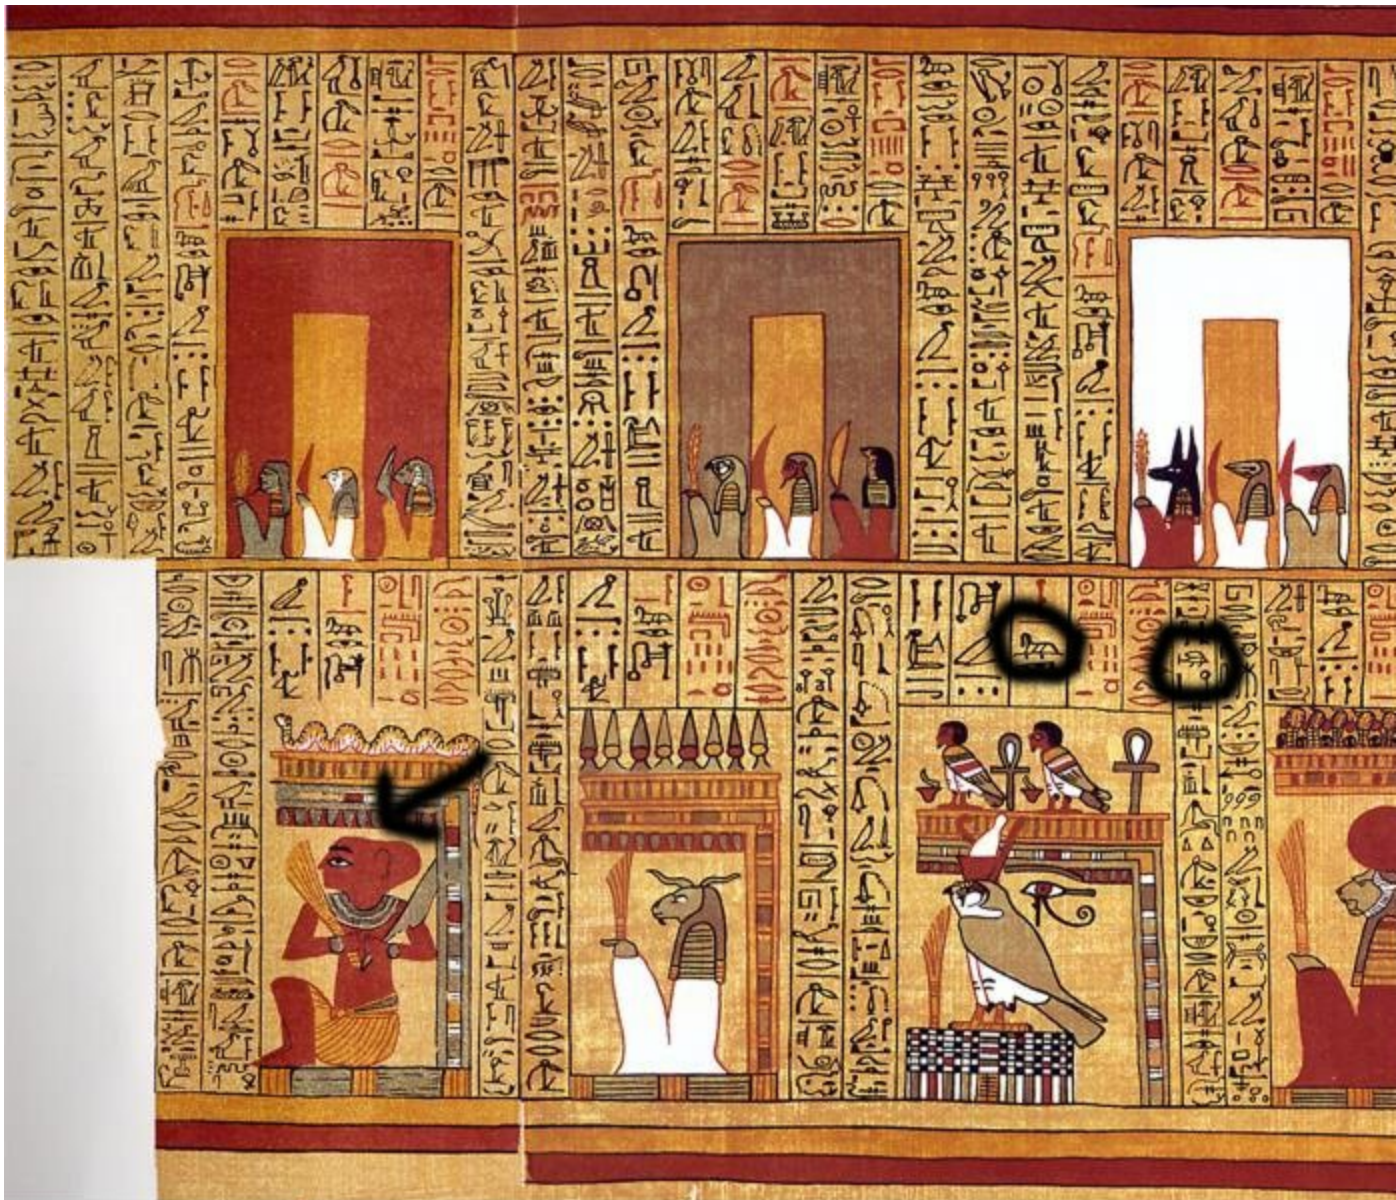

In the authentic pictures of the Book of the Dead that follow you will find a description underneath or beside the picture.

In this picture you will notice a figure in the upper left hand corner, the second one from the left, the head of the figure is much larger than a normal human head as we can easily see. What would be the purpose of painting such a large head, when a normal head is as easy to draw... Throughout paintings on walls and carvings and also in statues in Egypt we find both men and women with much larger skulls and we notice that their heads are elongated towards the back in many cases. The figure to the right of him also has a curious look to him, his head however does look about the normal size. Notice his long fingers and arms. The 4 characters in the upper left hand corner also appear to be transporting something. The objects they are carrying look to be machined, or in the least they seem to be objects that are not primitive in shape. The shape of the long white object has a symmetrical shape to it and it has what seems to be 2 dangling black ropes, (atleast that is what they appear to be when we look at them) seeing them painted on a wall in this few colors, gives us a vague idea of what they are). I say ropes for lack of a better assumption in this case. To his right we see a figure holding 2 objects which are resting on a flat object. When looking at these 2 objects I come to a right off the bat conclusion, that is, these objects look technical in their shape. These 2 shapes which we see painted here have a rounded shape on then top and a rim underneath with equal sides. The reason I say they seem technical in design is of course their shape, (they could have created vases and pottery a lot less peculiar in shape which would have given the same result) and also the fact that we see these shapes often in the book of the dead and in much greater detail, these shapes often reveal other details which makes things clearer as to my deduction as to their shapes being technical in nature. Next we come to the figure with the elongated head, he seems to be transporting something resting on his shoulders. The white part may in fact be some type of glass because we can see him through this object. Also notice the shape of the black edges of the object, they are quite interesting, they form quite a shape as you can see. What sort of primitive device would need such an elaborate shape?? If you ask me I would say none, which is the truth. Have you ever seen aboriginal people in Australia or other primitive people which exist today creating such incredible shapes and devices. I haven't, maybe they sometimes do have a few technical looking ceremonial objects, but today that would be expected. But as technical as these look which were made thousands of years ago?? That is just too much to swallow for anyone in their right mind. The Egyptians who live in Egypt today have been living in the shroud of pride of the fact that they are the ancestors of such a talented group of people, the Ancients.

We then see the figure on the complete left who has something in each hand, in 1 hand we see 2 obelisk looking objects, similar obelisks which weight several tons in stone have been found around the world, their purpose to this day is unknown. What logical purpose would a primitive people like this have in building such obelisks? To say for sure that these are obelisks in this picture however would be premature and I don't like making concrete assumptions when I don't have enough proof. In his other hand we see 2 other objects, by looking at their shape and detail I can honestly say that I don't know what they are or their purpose. I can say however that the paintings in Egypt in the Book of the dead are well painted however the details we see in these pictures was painted... Which means that the actual look of the objects being painted did not have the same exact shape as in the pictures. Straight lines in actuality would be straight, circular shapes would be circular, one thing to be noted however is the excellent use of scale in these pictures. Notice how the painters of these pictures are able to produce pictures of people with the same sized heads over and over, the relationship between the size of the body and head is constant when it needs to be as you can see in this picture. The heads and bodies of the 8 people are completely well presented in their form. Of course the other figures are not as easy to draw because they are smaller. Yet they are easy enough to draw to make their heads the right shape. Because as you can see the other people below the ones transporting objects are a little larger yet their proportions are maintained very well.

The next arrow shows a box structure, notice the small human-like figures painted in black, they look human but are they? They have long arms and smaller bodies, and the shape of their heads is not the same as a normal human. To better compare the figures in this picture we will compare them with a picture found in Ancient Egypt, see page _____. Many people have claimed to have seen these same aliens on Earth, in Roswell New Mexico the most famous alien sighting of all times. Beside these figures in the box like structure in the picture above there are also conductor like shapes which resemble power lines, to me when I look at these shapes I find that they look technical in nature, they hardly seem like the type of structure a primitive people would paint onto a box with no good reason. In my opinion these structures are technology associated with the figures that are beside them. Throughout the book of the dead we see pictures with a character beside them. To me this represents an association, kind of like a logo if you will.

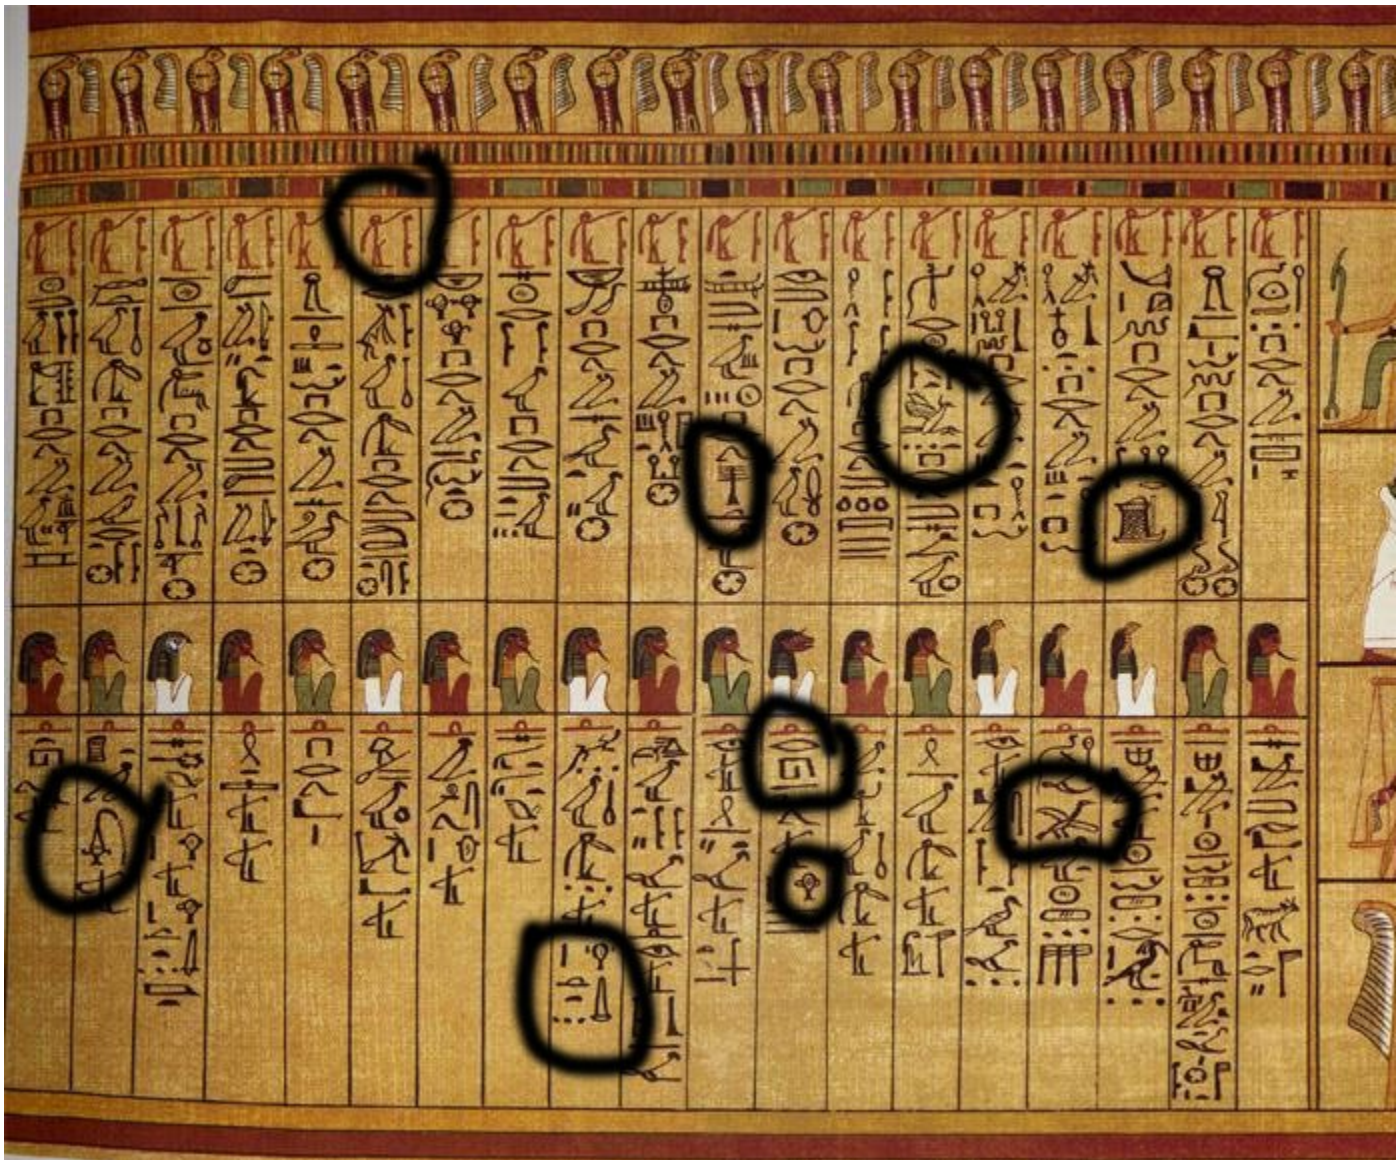

In the picture above notice the person with the arrow pointing at him, his head is elongated and oddly shaped. Was this done by mistake, I highly doubt it, the most probable reason he is depicted as such is because he looked like he is depicted. To the right of this character are other beings with animal heads. These pictures show these animal heads on human bodies and the faces show emotion. Whether it be seriousness or intelligence, they do show emotion and personality. The most logical reason these characters are seen here is because they existed as they are seen here. That may sound far-fetched but it is not. It is the most logical conclusion and the one that makes absolute perfect sense. Throughout the book of the dead we see different people with animal heads, sometimes we do not even recognize these species of animals. The only solution that I see and the one that makes the most sense is that these aliens existed, they came from another planet, these different species either lived together or most likely met together at the place called Heliopolis. The book of the dead is not a book of mortuary spells, it is the story of human creation, animal creation, and the creation of society as we know it. The book of the dead is the worlds greatest history book ever written. The animals depicted in the book of the dead were created into animals with animal bodies. However these aliens meant for this to be this way probably. I don't claim to know the reasons for everything they did. The book of the dead contains hieroglyphics and code that is so complex and filled with geometric shapes, there is no way it could be as simplistic as Egyptologists claim. Notice the 2 circled objects in the code, they resemble spacecraft as we depict them in science fiction movies. How did these Egyptians come up with such hieroglyphs. These hieroglyphs of plane-looking vehicles or flying saucer looking vehicles are depicted a number of times, and not only in the book of the dead. They have been carved in stone thousands of years ago. A carving of what seems to be a plane was also found in Egypt, no planes existed back then however, it looks like a plane however it is most likely capable of space travel as well.

If you look at the code you will see spacecraft looking symbols over and over. The reason I say that the Book of the Dead should be called the Book of Life is because it most probably contains the genetic code for creating the different species of humans, animals, and reptiles that exist on Earth today. Notice that many dangerous species of animals and reptiles were wiped out several thousand years ago. Where did they go? Most likely they were removed by the visiting aliens to make way for a community of animals and reptiles safe for the modern human to become dominant on Earth. In the picture above notice the many animal characters depicted with human bodies, in the right hand corner there is a species that I have never seen on Earth. Why would the Ancient Egyptians go to such trouble to create pictures of animals that didn't exist. These people were incredibly intelligent, if you look at pictures of Ancient Egypt you can come to no other conclusion. Ancient Egyptian texts tell us about the basic principles and foundations of spirituality, which are the underlying principles contained in all major religions. Why were they called Gods though, the people who lived in Egypt saw them as Gods because they were so impressive with their spacecraft and incredible technology. That is why they are in plural form, there was not one God there were several, several types of aliens that is.

As you look at the Book of the dead and study the code you notice a pattern. In my opinion the code beside each scene often represents the genetic formula for creating the creation in the scene. Or in other cases the method to build the technology in the picture. Notice the device on the head of the creature on the bottom right hand corner, is this a hat, if so what purpose would such a hat have? Notice throughout the book of the dead that the creatures that wear such head devices have different features on their individual head devices.

In this picture we see a row of different characters with different faces. Above and beneath each character we see code with very strange pictures in the code at times. In the code above the pictures we see a character with his penis in erection and his arm is outstretched. I think this represents creation, and the code possibly refers to the genetic code of the individuals in the pictures, they are probably different species of aliens. Heliopolis that I spoke of before is here a great meeting of all the Gods took place, these gods were aliens. Or maybe not all races of aliens were present, but this part of the book of the dead at least lets us know who they are and what they are made of. Below the individuals the first symbol in the code is a red picture which could be a flying saucer but I can't say for sure. But the code below in my opinion probably refers to their position in space, where they reside, in all obviousness the ones who created the book of the dead were not dangerous or evil. We don't see any evidence of that, and they are giving us the locations and codes for creating different life forms. Maybe this is common knowledge on other planets in distant galaxies. Throughout the book of the dead there are many codes, often referring to technologies. In many religions we hear that the gods will return, this may be true, the means to communicate with them is no doubt included in the book of the dead. Or they have a prechosen date that they will return, I do not know what date that is or if there is such a date. If there is such a date it is not some apocalypse type of day to be avoided. In the picture above I have circled some of the more bizarre code, on the bottom left is some sort of technology it would seem. We also see a plumed serpent, a picture we often see not only in Ancient Egypt but in other ancient lands like India and Mexico. Throughout the world in different countries we see the plumed serpent. Why is this? I think the reason is clear, the plumed serpent refers to the aliens who could fly (plumed) like birds, a godlike race or people are always associated with the plumed serpent. In Mexico Quetzalcoatl the bringer of civilization, the teacher and modernizer, who taught astronomy and laws, and brought knowledge to the Mayans was referred to as a Plumed serpent as well. A serpent race known as the Nagas is also known to have existed in India, the two are depicted as a plumed serpents. In the book of the dead and in many Egyptian hieroglyphs we see serpents and characters with serpent heads. I think they were probably a race of aliens, and the serpent was highly regarded by this race.

In the picture above we can also see an alligator with strange proportions not normal for a regular gator. We also see humans with alligator heads in the book of the dead. Most probably the origin of the alligator on Earth is from this race of aliens. A part of their genetic code was used to create the alligator. Some will argue that the alligator has been around long before the ancient Egyptians, I do not doubt this. But one thing is for sure and that is that the aliens may have been here long before Egyptian times as well in the distant past. But evolution I agree does exist, animals and life forms do evolve. However the main theory of evolution that relates to human beings is severely flawed. No reasonable amount of skulls have been found to accurately determine that man evolved from the ape. It is a ludicrous idea to say the least, if we really did evolve from the ape we would have no doubt found much more of these skeletons and skulls and more evidence of this, paintings on walls in caves of ape men, and other phenomenon, but we have not. A few skulls with large foreheads and different skull formation than the norm is our main basis for the theory on evolution. It is a poor case indeed, a more likely scenario would be that these few skulls found were of alien origin, possible the race of aliens who created the apes on Earth.

This would be a more reasonable explanation, because more alien looking skulls have been found on Earth than evolution-based ape-man skulls, take a look at the following skulls found in Peru. These are real skulls found there, this is not a trick, I have no time to waste with dishonesty or tricks, these skulls can be found in museums.

© 1995 Robert Connolly

© 1995 Lumir Janku

Why else would they portray this person with this elongated skull than if he really did exist. The flawed theories of why he is portrayed like this are naive and misguided. We now have more evidence to support the theory of our alien descendants than we do our human-ape connection. Evidence of aliens in our distant past are scattered all over our planet, from Peru, to Mexico, from Egypt to India. This picture is a simple picture of someone being driven around in a chariot, if this picture was some artistic rendition of Egypt which Egyptologists claim that signifies some meaning of Egyptian belief, why the elongated head. It just doesn't fit. Also notice the device on the other person's head. Throughout the book of the dead we see them with devices on their heads, obviously this was some kind of device used possibly for mental or spiritual use. I don't claim to know the hard facts of their usage, but a translation device could also be a possibility. Seeing several races of aliens were at Heliopolis it would have been handy to have them. Notice throughout the book of the dead many of the different races have different types of head devices, possibly these were the different races's individual translation devices, not every form of society has the same technology. This seems much more logical than the ideas put forth by Egyptologists.

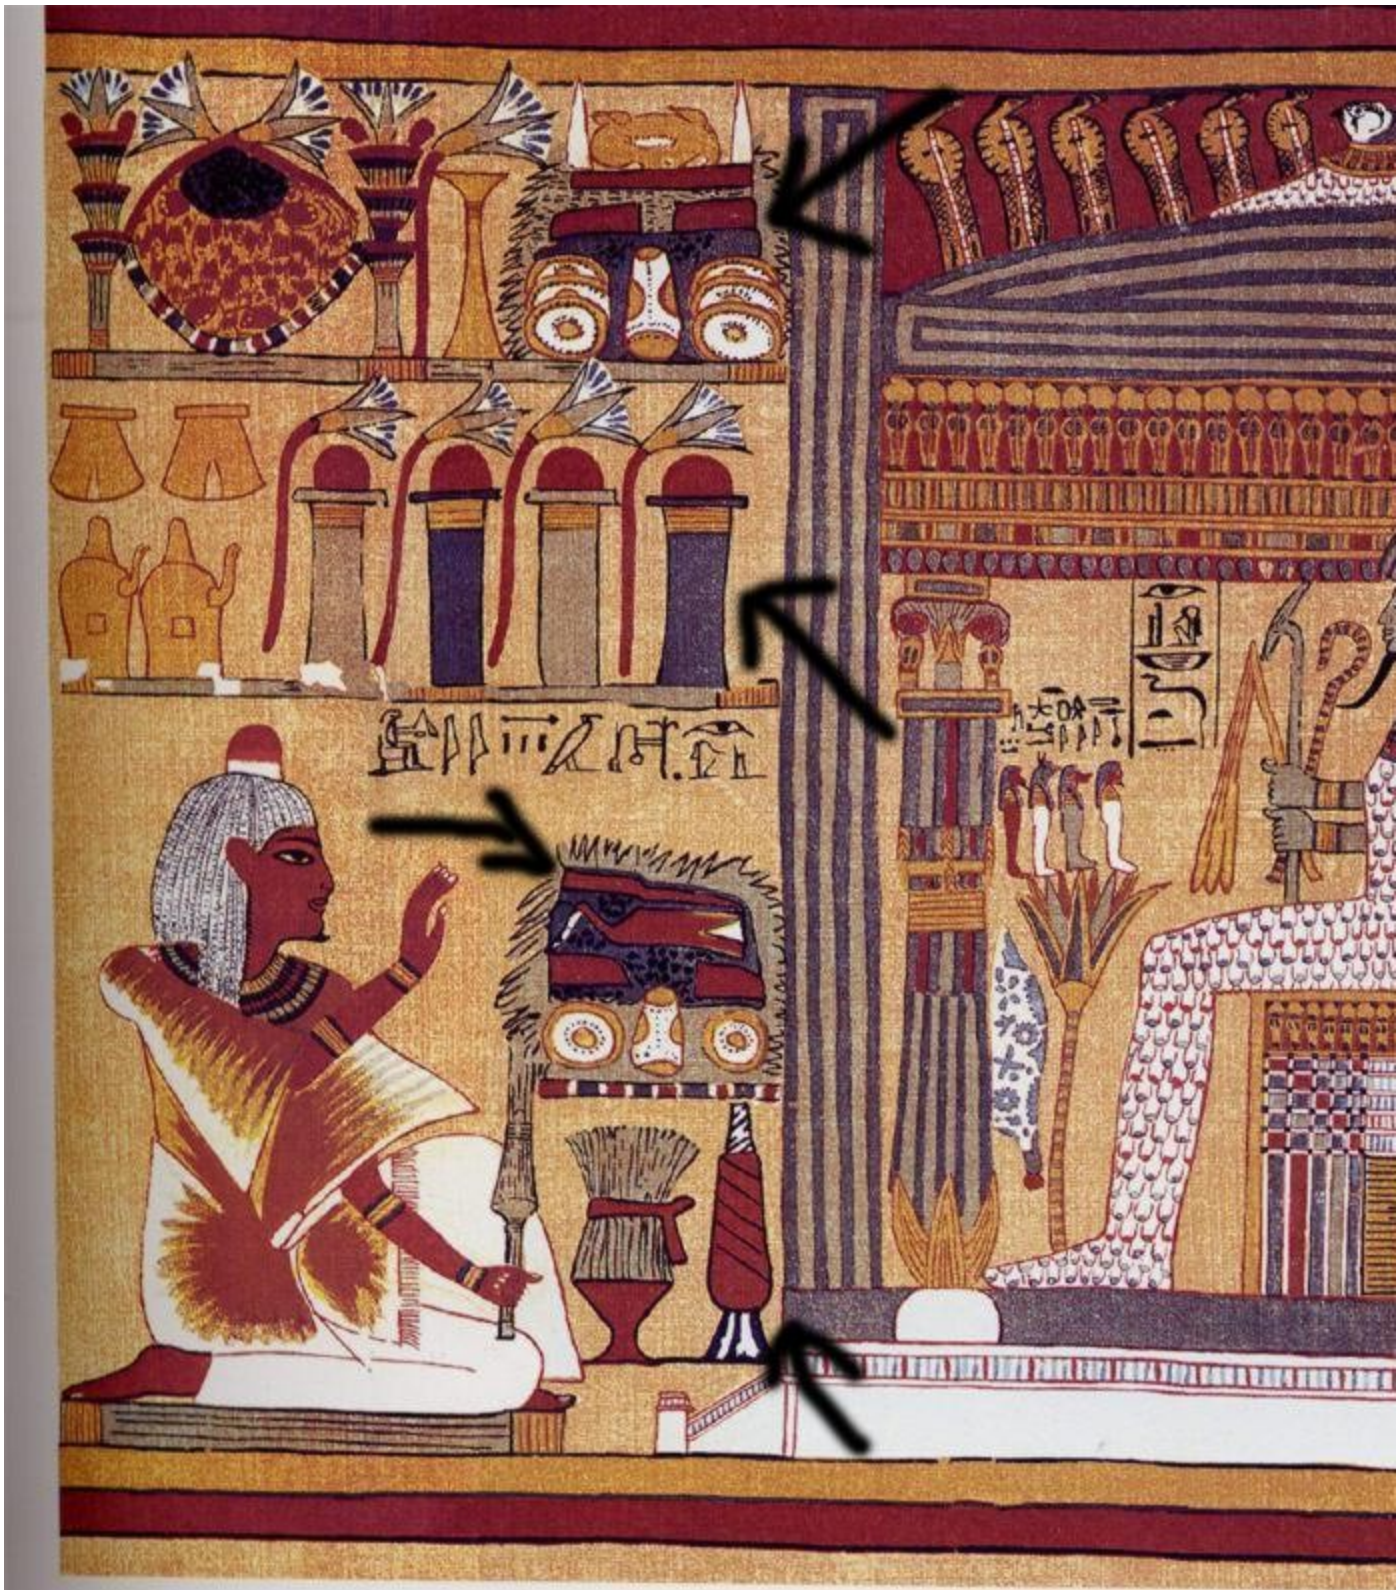

Statue found in Egypt of Nefertiti.

In this picture we have 4 aliens who are often seen throughout the book of the dead. My theory on this picture is that the machine that the arrow is pointing to reveals one of the humans created by the aliens. The device is maybe one that was used in our creation. Notice the two devices the human is holding onto on each side of the machine. Some type of lever to activate or stop the machine. Or it could be simply for the human to grab hold to exit the machine. This is just a theory of mine, it could be totally wrong. Unlike gurus who will tell you in absolute fact what something is, I will not, these are my ideas and I invite you to make your own judgements. I also invite you to look at the code in detail notice the strange symbols, are these not the types of symbols one would expect from an alien race... Let us be honest with ourselves these are complex codes with strange and unfamiliar signs and symbols. No primitive society could be as creative as this and actually understand what they were writing, this is more complex code than some computer code, let alone this is not easy code to reproduce time and time again. With the elongated heads that these ancients had they must have had a better communication method than speech alone, some sort of telepathy would be a reasonable assumption due to their large brain capacity and the amount of usage of their brains. Humans only use 10 percent of their brains in everyday life, their brains are much larger, scientists have said that the larger the brain the more elaborate the thoughts and brain activity.

I think that the code that we see hear is not only material painted on a wall, it is as Egyptologists have said "symbolic". Symbolic in the sense that when they looked at this code it probably was not read as we read books today. We humans have a spiritual side whethern we wish to admit it or not. In reading this code maybe they were portraying at times a profound spiritualn message at times and some of the pictures of birds for example were not simply pictures of birds, but instead they represented a part of the spiritual body, which they no doubt knew all about more than we do today. When humans today say that they sometimes feel like they are flying maybe it is a part of their spiritual makeover embedded from the genetic code implanted in them by our creators of long ago. Maybe some of these aliens were more spiritual in nature than others and some of us inherited more of this genetic trait than others. Ever notice how some people make you think of birds, no seriously, you look at someone and really they have a bird nose and they just look like a bird, or a pig, someone with a pig nose, or possibly someone who looks like puppy face. A different quantity and mixture of the codes of genetic material implanted in us at the time of creation randomly processed into each individual human makes us all different. I don't claim to know the formulas they used, but I do know that some of us have more developed senses thann others, some of us have more hair than others. Africans resemble apes at times more than caucasians do. Indians have larger noses. Could it be that at different times in history different racesn of aliens visited this planet and left behind offspring, it would explain the multitude of different races worldwide. The ancients in Egypt could however have created all these types of races. However evidence of different landings and habitations by mysterious races have occurred in different parts of the world, like in Mexico and in Peru. In fact Egyptian artifacts were found in Peru that date back several thousand years ago, yet we are baffled at how they could communicate over such great distances in ancient times, but the fact is that they did. The elongated skulls that are portrayed earlier were in fact found in Peru, yet the statue and pictures of the elongated skulls are in Ancient Egypt.

In this picture we see strange objects with some parts that look obviously look machined, notice the bottom arrow pointing to a cylindrical shape, this shape would not be easy to achieve in primitive times, the entire device looks complex, the outer edges on top look like fur or something and that gives us the impression that this is a primitive object. But remember this was painted to and was intended to show us the scene in the most detail possible. The top outer what looks like fur could be a representation of energy or heat coming from the device in this scene. The 2 circles which are yellow and white look like dials of some kind, and the brown reddish and black designs on top are modern looking and have very geometric looking shapes. Why so elaborate a design for some primitive device. It just doesn't make sense to think that it is primitive in nature, especially when associated with all the other anomalies in the book of the dead and in ancient Egypt. What we next see above this device is 4 very technical looking devices which we often see in the Egyptian book of the dead. If these are to be just vases as proposed by some why such a bizarre design. Maybe similar vases have been found dating from ancient times. That is possible, but they are probably copies of what some saw from the ancients. I don't claim to have every fact of the details of the ways they lived. Maybe they were just pottery in this case. However if they are pottery they are extremely fancy for such a primitive people. I don't claim to know every object that was found relating to Ancient Egypt, that does not however disqualify me from writing this book or anyone else for that matter. There are too many anomalies in Ancient Egypt and in the book of the dead to be ignored any longer. More and more people around the world are being drawn to Egypt, Peru, India, Mexico and the parts of the world touched by the hands of the Ancients. In fact I met a girl 2 days ago who was on vacation, she was leaving for Peru in the next days to visit the ancient sites, after her Peru vacation she was on to Mexico. I asked her several questions without sounding too specific as to her motivation to go to these places and her response was that she felt compelled to go. A part of her had to go, I felt a deep connection at that moment with her. A part of her knew that her true ancestors and their legacy was left in bits and pieces which however were enough to make her take several planes to get there. A magical and wonderful people came here a long time ago, their creations are everywhere whether we choose to stay in the comfort of our materialistic and comfortable modern society or not. They came they created and they left, admitting it and accepting it will only make us stronger. Opposition and discomfort when such subjects arise is popular especially among the rich as they are satisfied at least they think they are in their glamour and glitz. However a more magical, spiritual and tenfold more fulfilling reality exists, one where speech need not communicate what we feel. Deep down we can sense there is something more, we manifest it through different religions, and other ways. Many are searching for what this something is, I myself am searching and someday I will find it. Someday the ancients will return either by us calling them or them hearing our calls. I do not know, I do know that their legacy of our creation is the Book of the Dead, or the Book of Life as it more appropriately should be called.

Now back to the evidence... The part those who are not familiar or comfortable with the idea of aliens and extra-terrestrial beings.

In this picture there are many arrows because there are many anomalies which don't fit the mold that Egyptologists have led us to believe all these years. With the first arrow to the left we see a face that looks a lot like some kind of cat. Why would they portray a cat as a God, or in better terms, why would they dress him or her up like this and make the cat look so dignified. Could this character be responsible for the genes that make up cat species that exist on Earth today. I believe that to be the answer, the most logical answer. Later in this book I will present ample evidence to prove that man existed or atleast man-like figures existed in the time of the dinosaurs. The reason I will give this evidence is to co-relate with the existance of cats in dinosaur times, or cat-like creatures. To the right of the cat-like creature we see two circles, the one on top contains a strange looking object, while it does look like a goblet, it does not fit a goblet's pictorial description. Notice the rim of the object it's edges continue on each side making the rim not like a normal rim. What may seem like a goblet to us may have in fact been some type of anti-gravity technology used by the Ancients. To say that it was anti-gravity technology is speculation however it could be anything, however anti-gravity technology must have been used by the Ancients as well as other forms of technology to enable them to do the things they did. Many of the pictures in the book of the dead give us hints as to which devices were used for what. The key is to look at the code and to identify the meaning of the complex pictures and the association they might have with the other objects and characters painted. To the right of the picture we see a creature that I myself don't even recognize, some type of ram possibly. Most likely some species of beings exist on another planet that resemble this character. To think so is highly probable, if we exist in the form we are, the life forms that we are, why couldn't a life form of this likeness exist elsewhere on a planet that supports life.

Such a conclusion is not far-fetched, as we are currently looking for life signs on Mars anyways ourselves. Our origins and those of many of the animal species and reptiles and possibly some insects such as the scarab come from these beings. In some of the pictures I will present to you later on in this book you will see pictures of characters with dinosaurs as well in the distant past, many of you may wonder why these pictures are not in schools and written history if they are real. If they were to be put in history books and noted as genuine evidence of the many errors in our deduction of man's origin's. Hundreds of history books in schools would need to be rewritten, religions would face great challenges and many things would have to be changed. This fact alone presents even solid evidence found by researchers these days from making it to the history books. Take for example the skulls found in Peru, such evidence which was found with other artifacts which were totally out of place warranting a much better explanation than was given to them.

We were fed a story by scientists that these skulls are a result of primitive and ancient skull mutilation and deformation that was part of a ritual in these ancient cultures. Are we that naive as to believe such a ludicrous explanation. These skulls are elongated and must be very hard to produce the same density of bone fragment from front to back yet they are not much thinner at the back. Such details are overlooked by those who wish to publish findings on such artifacts due to a fear of ridicule, scientists don't want to lose their reputations or their jobs by claiming stake to an alien discovery. Yet that is exactly what this is, this is a discovery that gives us solid evidence when associated with Ancient Egyptian pictures. And even without Egyptian pictures these skulls are enough for us to question seriously what we currently have written in school books as to our so called evolution.

To the right of the ram-like creature we have an alligator however he has arms and legs and it would seem breasts as well. If the painters of these pictures were recreating some kind of aspect of humans and relating humans to alligators they sure went into great detail. But they were not. The alligator or crocodile figure has his hands on some kind of device which I am sure you will agree does indeed look technical in nature, some kind of tripod with an extension device of some kind extending from the part his hands are on. The key to unsolving the mystery as to why this croc-figure has this device and the others figures on the picture have other devices or objects along with them lies in the top part above their bodies. In the first picture we see a snake above the cat-like creature, remember this alien has an animal head. In the next picture we see an Egyptian or what we call Egyptians, above his body is the famous Egyptian Eye painted twice with a strange object painted in between the two Egyptian Eyes. This Eye is something we frequently see associated with the Egyptian figures, note that we see other symbols when associated with other alien races in Egyptian based hieroglyphs.

To the right of this character we see the ram-like figure, above his body is a snake picture in multiple instances with large circles above the heads of the snakes. Once again here we have an alien with an animal head and he is associated with snakes. To the right of this character we have the alligator character with his strange device. Above his body we see once again strange devices that look quite technical in nature. Was this a race which had several of these strange devices, a very technical race perhaps. To assume this would be pre-meditated however because no doubt all these races had very technical devices, the depiction of the alligator with these devices may just be in this instance, we will continue on and see the other pictures to compare... Notice also the many strange and quite complex and often technical looking objects or symbols in the code alongside the figures, does assuming these people were primitive seem at all logical when looking at such complex symbols.

Handwritten text in a cuneiform script, likely Sumerian or Akkadian, arranged in vertical columns. The text is written in black ink on a light-colored background. There are several large, dark, circular marks or stamps overlaid on the text, possibly indicating specific sections or characters of interest.

In this picture we see 8 figures, several of them are wearing special head gear, or elaborate hats if you prefer. One of these hats attracted my attention as it seems to be connected to something with some sort of wire or rope. Why such a rope or extension for a hat. Well first of all the hat is very strange, and the logical purpose for such a hat is beyond my modern mind... The figure I am referring to is on the left and he is the third one down. All through the Book of the Dead in both the Papyrus of Ani and The papyrus of Hunnefer we see these different characters with strange devices on their heads. I think they had very good reasons for putting these things on their heads, in some cases it probably was just as an elaborate hat. But in other cases that explanation doesn't fit. Sometimes we see them with pyramid looking objects on their heads, however pyramid is the definition of the object we get from Egyptologists, I myself don't think they represent pyramids. What they are is probably some type of thought enhancement or spiritual device that helps cleanse the chakras or aura of the individual. However this is a guess, it could also be an anti-gravity device, or a translation device that when put on the head you can understand the languages of other aliens. I am guessing but atleast I am guessing in the more logical direction that scientists currently are. In subsequent pictures we will look at the strange devices I am referring to which look technical to say the least. All throughout the Book of the Dead we see objects which look without a doubt technical and mechanical in nature.

In the bottom left of this picture we see a creature that I myself have never seen before. It looks across between a zebra and a cow and an alligator I would say. There are many strange creatures in the Book of the dead. To imagine them in such detail and dream these characters up from scratch seems doubtful. To create them in such detail it would seem necessary to have a true model. I am not saying a primitive Egyptian society could not have had elaborate and extraordinary art skills and talent and imagination. But for a group of primitive people that existed thousands of years ago this seems a little much to ask of them do you not honestly agree. The images we see in the Book of the Dead are highly complex when you truly take a good look at them. They had a mummification process which took great skill and knowledge which seems to have appeared out of nowhere. Where did this people learn such things and possess such spiritual wisdom and such knowledge of law and government and the ability to civilize. The main foundations for all religions today come from ancient Egypt and Nubia in Africa whether we admit it or not. If we refer to the ancient texts we find spiritual wisdom which encompasses all the most fundamental aspects of human life. I myself have read the book which explained exactly what the Ancients believed and the way they taught spirituality.

I have found it to make sense and I highly recommend reading what the ancients had to say. Not only spirituality came from them however, civilization began with them as far as we know, they did one thing for sure and that is pass knowledge of farming, spirituality, law making, social structure and more down to future generations. How could a people have such knowledge though, seemingly out of nowhere. This is a question many Egyptologists have not taken sufficient time to answer unfortunately, those who have answered it have given unsatisfactory answers for this question. The plain fact is they had to have gotten this knowledge from somewhere. The most logical answer when we look at all the evidence they left behind is that they were a highly advanced people. From the evidence on the walls in the temples and in the Book of the Dead the most reasonable and logical explanation is that they were aliens. As crazy as it may sound to many of you that is the most logical answer. If you think about it, it is not that crazy. Right now we are on Mars searching for life, however the answers to our most fundamental questions of our own creation and existence and the legacy of mankind has been on Earth all along. While going to Mars is exciting and fun and a good learning experience. Our resources and time would be much better spent studying the interplanetary evidence already in front of us instead of flying to other unknown planets in search of the same evidence.

Because if we can decode the Book of the Dead we will probably find the method of contact to contact the Ancients. From all the evidence I have studied these were a peaceful race, a creation race, no doubt with means of protecting themselves. However I believe that studying the book of the dead will very soon lead to contact and an advancement in our own technology. Concepts which some have already discovered by studying the Book of the Dead include motion and gravity machines. The complex pictures in the Book of the dead mean something. The code especially has incredible meaning, decoding it is essential. I myself am getting a better understanding of its meaning each day that I study it. The answers are there, we will find them soon. If we can all now realize that this ancient book is what it is, a book of the legacy of creation on Earth, then we have taken the first step. As of yesterday we have cloned the first human embryo, this opens doors so wide that now anything seems possible. Well guess what, anything is possible, if we after only a few thousand years of civilization have reached the stage of cloning. Imagine the creation abilities of a race which has existed for several thousands of years. The possibilities are mind-boggling. Such an intelligent society though would not only be technically advanced but as we can see from their legacy they were a mystical, spiritual, and I would even say magical people. Their world must be incredible to say the least, in my mind seeing their world, their planet, would be a going home for us, seeing what life can do. A magical possibility exists in each of us, and we manifest that magic many times in our life in different ways. To fly, to speak without physically using our voices, but to use telepathy, to travel the galaxy. These are things in our future without a doubt if we continue down the road we are going. When I say the ability to fly, I believe that in less than 20 years we will have anti-gravity devices which people will be able to attach to their feet, once attached we will be capable of flight without aid of rocket-based technology. Flight will become simple, in many ancient texts we see pictures of people flying, were they possibly drawing something they actually witnessed thousands of years ago. Of this fact I have no proof. But mastering gravity is becoming closer to becoming a reality. Several agencies such as Nasa are looking into this topic. Sooner or later it will be achieved, flight as we know it will take on new meaning. But waiting for our own scientists to create such devices seems like a too long wait. Contacting those who have given us a written legacy in the walls in Egypt, is a far faster way of getting to the place which we ultimately should go . Not going in this direction could ultimately lead to dire consequences for our planet. Global temperatures are rising, while we could ultimately find a solution to this problem through our own technical know-how, we don't seem to be going in the right direction as a whole. We build more and more fuel-based automobiles which creates more and more pollution. We continually do things which do harm to our planet. To think that our Earth will sustain such an attack forever is not realistic. If we look back in history global catastrophes seem to have been evident in history. Scientists talk about comets hitting the Earth and wiping out everything, or crustal displacements (Earth's crust moving) which would destroy all living things on Earth. Contact with our Ancestors seems to me primordial, any other scientific motive seems trivial compared to this one in my mind. Because contact would bring every other scientific, spiritual, and technological breakthrough in record time. Something our planet needs right now desperately. I am not a doomsday fanatic however don't get me wrong. I am not saying that the apocolypse is soon upon us. I will not set a date here for the end of the world. Those who do that are misguiding us. What I am saying is that if you look at our current situation, I am sure you will agree that we do need a wake up call. Our way of thinking needs a desparate wake up call. I am not pretending to be some saviour who has the answers to all our problems, I am just saying that we are looking in the wrong directions for the things which will put us on the track we need to be on. Back to the evidence now...

[[[4]]]

卷之四

子

三三三

三

[illegible]

In this picture we see 3 flying characters in hieroglyph form, we can however quite clearly see that they are flying. Their bodies are in movement and each have a similar curvature. Next to these 3 characters we see a glyph of a bird, and an oval object, as well as other glyphs. The thing to retain at the moment is the 3 flying characters and the bird. The reason we should concentrate on these characters is the relationship they have to the rest of the entire picture. The large character who has blue skin on the left of the picture has his hand under what looks to be a brick. The character to the right of this figure has his hands over the bricks, notice that there is an easily noticeable space in between both character's hands and the brick or object if you will, as if it were somehow floating on its own. The code above the right hand of the figure with brown-reddish skin no doubt tells us about the brick and how it is levitated in such a way, or the code should tell us something of what we are seeing. The large square device which is under the code that includes the 3 flying characters is no doubt another device related to flying or anti-gravity technology. Throughout the Book of Life we see pictures with code right beside them, telling us about what we are seeing. To the right of this square device we see an eye with lines attached to it one of which ends in a spiral. Spirals and spiral designs are often seen in ancient pictures, noticeably in Egypt. Einstein's unified field theory speaks of how all physical matter has a spiral shape attached to it. The framework of all physical matter has a spiral shape, the energy of each physical material that we look at has this spiral energy. To see it we need a special device. Ancient Hindu tradition says that this life force or energy manifests itself in the form of a spiral, and brings with it the forces of attraction and repulsion. It is my belief that the Ancients knew the makeup of energy and the makeup of physical energy, since they knew the makeup of all physical material they indeed had a way of manipulating that energy. The many codes we see associated with this picture speak of and describe this technology and knowledge. To better support this idea I have put forth, it is important to realize that Ancient Spiral pictures have been found engraved in rocks, alongside hieroglyphics, on riverbeds accompanying other strange glyphs and in other ways as well. In each case we find them associated with a time far gone, usually these spirals can date back farther than 5000 years ago. Some spirals carved into rock are believed to go even farther back in history.

Here are some pictures of these spirals which have been dated by scientists.

Here is a picture of the famous plumed serpent or flying serpent, notice that his body is shaped into the form of a spiral. Not only in Egypt do we see the symbol of the feathered serpent or flying serpent, we see this symbol in Ancient Mexico, where the other pyramids are which are quite fancy in design. We also find the flying serpent or feathered serpent in Ancient India, where ancient texts speak of a race that existed thousands of years ago, a race known as the serpent race. The ancient texts speak of Vimanas, flying machines used in those times, detailed information on these flying devices is given. Quetzalcoatl, the famous Mexican God of ancient times seen in several hieroglyphs left behind by the Mayan culture, or race... He was said to be a civilizer and teacher of astronomy, math, science, and a God of wisdom. Many strange glyphs are found of him, we see him portrayed in strange devices with his head protruding from a serpent. Flying serpents are also popular in Ancient China, China has several myths related to serpents that fly, dragons as well.

What are we to make of this well-documented case of flying serpents found across the globe always found in places that are ancient and that date back thousands of years ago. The answer is evident, such a race of people no doubt did exist here for a while. Their ships may have been in the shapes of serpents, and it was their main symbol. I don't claim to know all the details of what they looked like, however we can get a good idea by looking at the book of the dead, in it we do see figures with the heads of serpents. The DNA of snakes may in fact hold many secrets which we need to know about. Seeing that the snake was so important to the ancient races, its significance must have a logical reason. If you read up on ancient Egypt you will read that many of the animals were held sacred. They say this in part because many animals such as alligators were found mummified as well as birds and other animals. A much more logical reason for mummifying these animals must have existed. Cloning here on Earth is now becoming a reality, for a much more advanced race, cloning much be simple, however when someone dies something may have to be done to preserve DNA or other aspects of the living creature or person in order to recreate them, if that was the intention.

Have you ever noticed obese Egyptian Gods, I have not they are always in excellent shape. Another description of the spiral shape by ancient cultures is that of rebirth and reincarnation. If some matter can be maintained in it's original form through manipulation of it's energy, say for instance a rechargeable battery, it can regain it's former energy and last a long time once recharged, or once it's energy has been modified. A neutralization of the effects that our energy can take on which induce aging are probably quite simplistic, once you acquire the basics and dynamics of the basic manipulation of physical matter at it's core. If this physical matter I am speaking of can be modified which Einstein believed could be, then solid matter as we know it could be modified to be passed through easily once it's energy was changed. From all the evidence left behind by the Ancients it seems obvious that they had such knowledge and more. To create gigantic pyramids like we see in Egypt which consist of stones which weigh several tons is next to impossible for a primitive people. To recreate such a pyramid such as the great pyramid of Egypt in modern times we would need the biggest cranes of the world to move 1 stone at a time. The idea that the ancients created these pyramids without better technology then we attribute to their culture is absolutely ridiculous. The pyramids are created in such detail and precision that recreating the same pyramids today would be extremely difficult, in fact I doubt we could do it at all. People 5000 years ago however did manage to do this. If for fun, let's say that the Egyptians did build the pyramids for burying their pharaohs, why is it no bodies have been found in the Great pyramid or traces of bodies. Are we to think that they would spend 40 years which is what egyptologists say is the amount of time it took the egyptians to build the great pyramid to just put a dead body in it. I highly doubt it. In fact if they wanted to bury their pharoah in a pyramid they would have built a much smaller one. There was another reason for creating such enermous pyramids, and I will get to it later in this book. Back to the picture above for now.

In the picture above there is some code circled on the left of the picture which includes 3 objects which look a lot like ufos as we see and hear them described today. To the right of the picture there is another balck circle, this one contains a glyph that we see often in Mayan hieroglyphics. Did the Mayans and the Egyptians have a connection, they no doubt did, or atleast had knowledge of their language. Maybe it is a universally used symbol used by several alien races. Of this I cannot be sure, as my research continues such similarities in ancient codes will surely come up.

In this picture on the left we see a scene which I myself find quite normal, in that sense I find not too many alien devices that look especially alien in the scene.

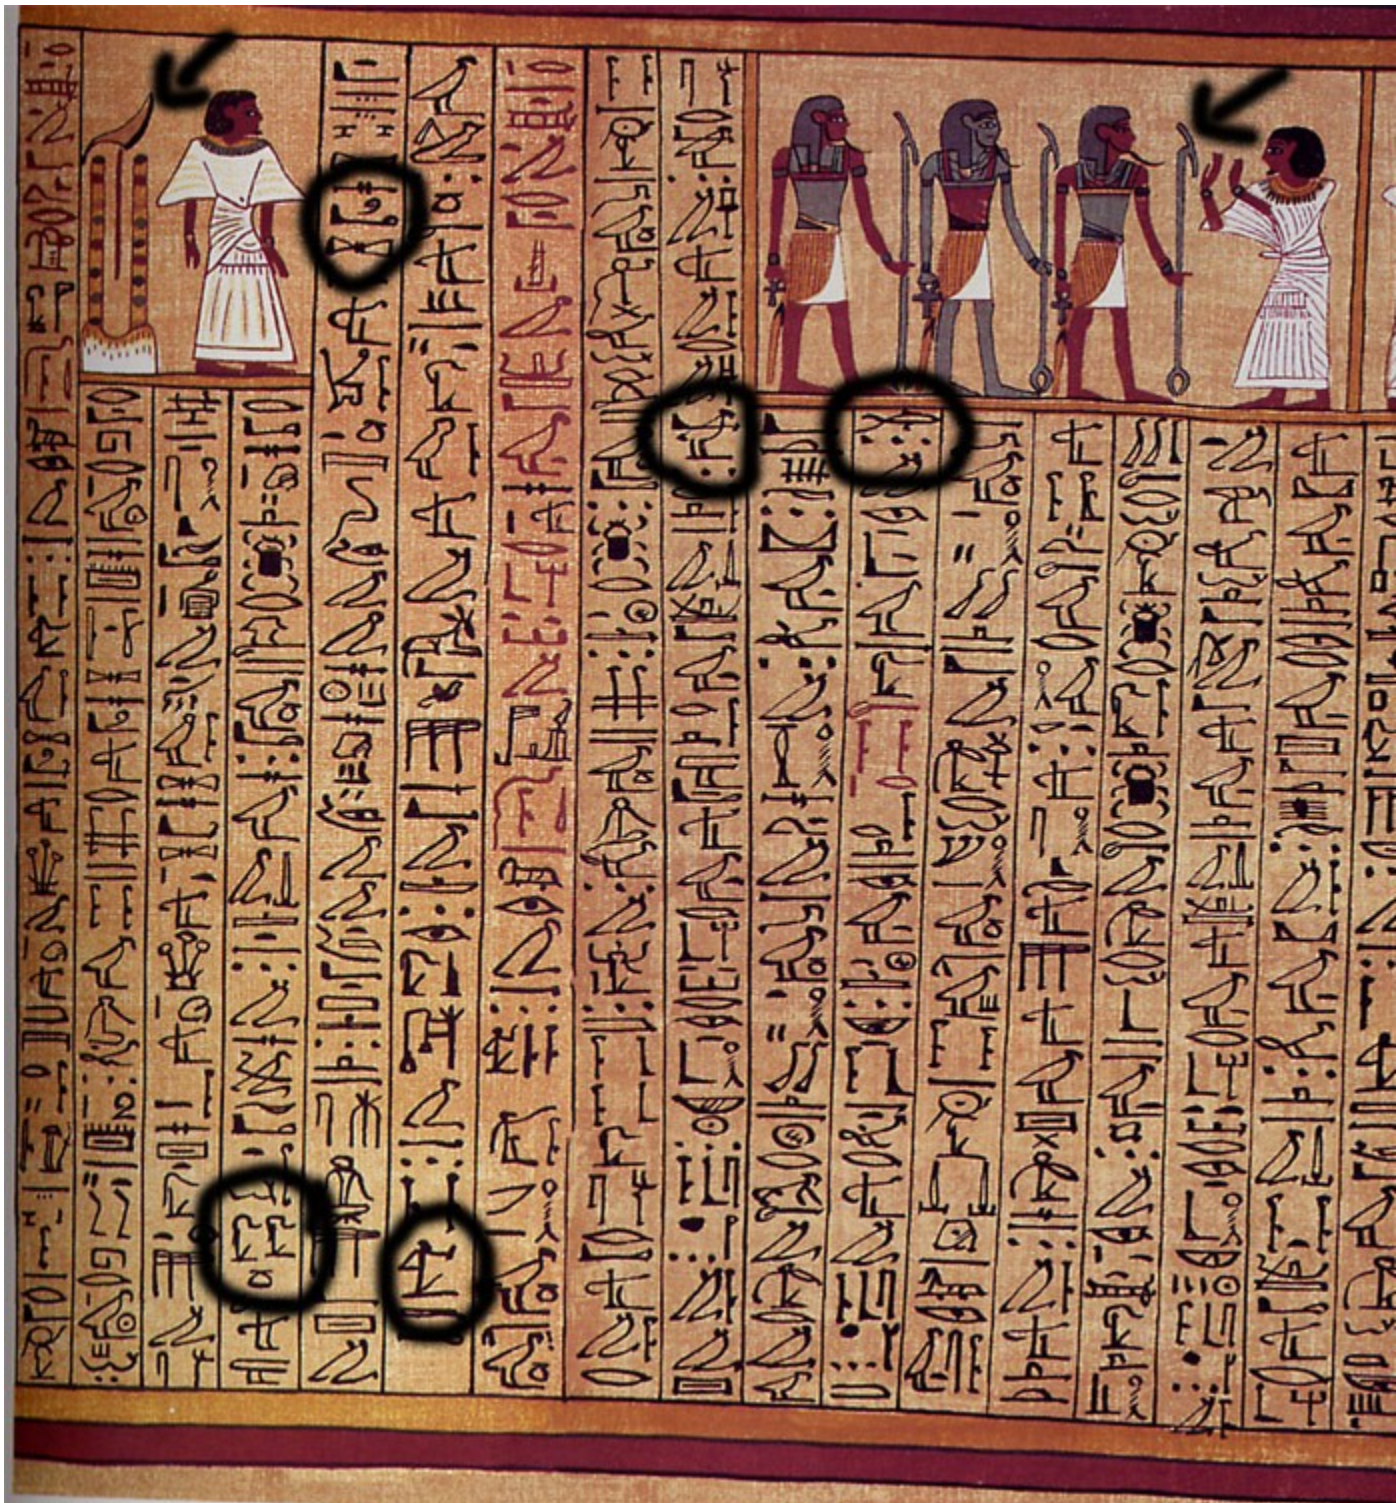

The snake staff he is holding does not seem so technical. There are however some shapes under his hand that hold the staff, but the detail is not enough to make a good guess. His staff though is in snake form with a snake head, why this obsession with snakes? The answer is that their symbol or emblem could be the snake, because there were aliens that had snake heads and they had some relation to them. The total answer to the obsession with snakes in Ancient Egypt and in other ancient civilizations lies in Alien races. Maybe the serpent race did not come at the same time as other ancient aliens, and when they came they made their stay at several different places in the world and left their mark. Obviously this snake race had something to do in ancient Egypt, at Heliopolis maybe they were there and put in there 2 cents. In ancient Egypt we find many statues which may represent different alien races, we find rams, dogs, cows, lions, snakes, and birds, and more. All of these statues could have been a meeting place for the alien races and was built in order to accommodate the guests to the summit of aliens who met here long ago. It does present a more logical for all the array of different statues in Egypt. While there was no doubt aliens in Ancient Egypt it is many's belief that there were aliens visiting Earth long before that around the world. This would explain many of the unexplainable monuments around the world which have different characteristics, such as Easter Island, the Yucatan, Peru, and others. In the picture to the right we see a dog headed figure and a man with brownish skin. In between them is a very technical looking device with something protruding from the top which could be heat, a gas, fire, liquid, or an antenna of some sort, or it could be decorative. Notice the white magnet shaped center of the object, it has many different colors on it, which in my opinion are buttons or controls or the make up of the technology. Whatever they are such detail is unnecessary for any number of simplistic explanations Egyptologists give us for the explanation as to the function of this object.

Under the white center part we see a boat shaped object with large circle above it. We often see these well shaped boats of Ancient Egypt, why the large ball on the boat though. Underneath the square holding the boat with the circle on it we see conical grey objects which are each identical it would seem, such elaborate design for a supposedly primitive object wouldn't you say. Also it is important to notice The dog headed figure with his strange staff, if a staff is indeed what he is holding, some sort of weapon possibly, or a technical object of some kind. While some of the objects we see in some of these pictures may have been found in excavations and did not have any technical nature, they may have been copies of the original alien devices. In other words they were just objects made to look like the true devices. However if I am not mistaken not many of the strange looking devices in the pictures contained in the book of the dead were found. Some indeed were, but the most unexplainable were not, and if they were found the public was not made aware of them. The most important part of this picture is the code beneath, there are extremely strange symbols which primitive people would not only have trouble imagining but retaining all of their meanings once the code was complete would be hard for such a supposed primitive people. This point is very important as this fact alone undermines the theory of the primitive source of this code. Seeing the birds and scarabs and sometimes familiar images we know of we presume this code to be primitive. However the birds and scarabs should be a part of the many complex symbols we see in egyptian hieroglyphics, because if they created many of the animal and insect species on Earth it is only natural that the fabric of their existance be embedded into their language or code that they use. In the left of this picture we see the first circled part of code which contains some ufo looking crafts AGAIN, as well as a spiral. Spirals are the stuff that universes are made of, galaxies are in spiral form and energy and matter have unseen spiral forms. Spirals are the universal sign of understanding of the universe that we live in. Atleast they should be, and in all evidence they are indeed that.

In the fourth circle to the right we see a very complex looking device circled resembling some sort of alien device, a flying saucer looking object is located just beneath it. Could the code above the saucer be information on the origin of the builders, or information on building the saucer. Either way understanding this code is the most important goal we as a people should have, as it may hold the keys to contacting these races, or building the technology to do so. Already many people on Earth are secretly developing ufo-type technology in their basements and in their garages. Anti-gravity devices and patents for such devices are being filed more and more frequently, a working model available for commercialization is yet to arise however. In the fifth circle we see another flying saucer looking object that we see often in the Ancient's code, beside it we see a dotted line that goes downwards, could this signify going down or landing, or flying. In many images contained in their code we see this dotted line, often it is associated with birds and strange objects, it is my thinking that the birds may signify flight, and the objects the type of flight. True there are different types of birds, maybe to identify different types of crafts, or it could be for an entirely different reason. Such as the role of the bird in the spiritual side of life in the type of world they intended to shape on Earth. The many symbols in the code in the book of the dead which contain a figure with an erect penis, whether the figure has a snake head, a bird head, a man's head or other, it is my idea that each of these symbols signifies creation.

Could the beginning line of creation code start with this symbol, in other words for creations of the type made by the snake race start with the snake head erect symbol. This seems logical, as there are several instances in the code where different creation codes are there and different race symbols are signified, this is shown by the different heads of the sitting figures which are in erection.

In this picture from the book of the dead we see some sort of technology on the top left. Why do I think it is technology of some sort, well if it were some simplistic primitive decoration or tool it would not be so elaborately shaped. Also notice the circles running down the sides of the device, these could be dials to control the device, or the holes to place the crystals which power the device. Underneath on the bottom I circled 2 snake headed figures who are in erection. This could represent their creation of snakes on Earth or other, the fact is that the Ancients would not have put so many snake representations in so many ways without some good reason. Imagine if everyone in Florida went around painting giraffe headed figures everywhere, (doubt that would happen) but if it did, those people would probably have a reason for doing so, some motivation. There are snake monuments and representations all over the world where ancient cultures and civilizations lived. It is in Egypt though that we see snake headed figures and so much detail about the snake race. Why so much detail, that snake representations in so many forms, especially in the form of feathered serpents exist in so many places worldwide and are all very old raises too many questions to be logically satisfied by current Archaeological reasons for this. The truth is that they don't know why there are snake representations in all these different places, they formulate unoriginal and unlogical theories and make their names with them. Books for school are written and we are forced to accept these brilliant archaeological discoveries.

The truth hurts and that truth is that there was a race either with literal snake features, or that had some important ties with the snake which depicted and symbolized their species. The next circle is that of a spiral, which in my opinion symbolizes universal energy, cosmic energy, solar energy, all matter has spiral form when analyzed with the right material, the energy that makes up matter is in spiral form. The chakras of the human body circulate in spiral form, the spiral is representative of life and the universe. Galaxies are in what form? Spirals!!! This race was telling us by carving spirals in stone on monuments in paintings on statues and in hieroglyphics that they had intimate knowledge of how to manipulate matter, energy, and the physical world. They were also telling us they knew of space and the making of the universe and its composition and how to manipulate space and time. Each picture left behind has important meaning, the way they are expressing it to us is the most simple and down to Earth way of doing so. If they were to write in simply in letters and words, we would have little chance of understanding. But with pictures and symbols, our conscious and subconscious minds are now realizing the meaning of this intelligent species' paintings. They were brilliant, spiritually in tune with the universe, they left us a detailed record of their passing. They have left us a message, that message is basically that anything is possible, manipulating energy both solar and cosmic is possible, manipulating gravity, weather, and time are things which they had knowledge of, anything is possible through mentalism and scientific and reflective thought. The main idea behind Ancient Egyptian religion is that the universe is Called "The All". The "All" is a mental idea or representation, everything is mental in nature. All thoughts can be modified therefore the universe in which we live is also modifiable. The All is everything and everything is mental, however that mental world is composed of physical matter and energy, gases, liquids, and so forth. I don't claim to know all details of how the universe works as these Ancients did, but I can see their point. If the world is an idea or bunch of ideas represented in different forms we can basically modify each idea if we want to. Once we learn how to change the energy of physical matter we will be able to pass through matter. We will be able to modify matter, we will be able to create matter and change matter. All physical things are matter, all matter has energy, which means once we learn how to manipulate the energy within the matter we can dominate matter, and transform and modify, pass through it, restore it to material form, etc.. All matter is composed of elements, once we can modify elements we can reconstruct the world as we know it. It is a matter of time before we learn how.

Since the beginning of the writing of this book I have accumulated knowledge on how to translate some of the Ancient Glyphs in the correct fashion. It is a work in progress, but some progress I do seem to have achieved in this field through reading several books and looking at several glyphs. In the picture above I have circled a glyph symbol that has a bird with a ship through it, or what looks like a ship or flying saucer or craft of some kind. Later I will present a picture of an ancient wood carving of an airplane or what resembles very accurately an airplane of modern design, or atleast an equal amount of talent and skill in the aerodynamic building of the plane. This ancient carving is of what seems to be an airplane, the carving is dated to be thousands of years old. The proportions and the entirety of the carving suggest very suprisingly to some that the Ancients had knowledge of areodynamics and flight. As this model carving has a wings, a tail, and a nose, the proportions are just what would be needed to produce good flight. To carve something of this magnitude when it comes to primitive imagination, I highly doubt there imaginative primitive imaginations were this advanced. If they had imaginations this good, they probably were much more advanced then our Egyptologists and Scientists give them credit for. The same plane carving can be seen in the glyphs and different variations of planes, (aircraft), as well as spacecraft can be seen. To suggest that the Ancients not only used flying saucers or "spacecraft", but aircrafts as well is likely. Once in outer space anti-gravity crafts would be needed, but once in the atmosphere of a planet like ours, less advanced craft such as aircraft could be sufficient. To say that their aircraft are primitive such as our's would be naive though. Their aircraft was probably much more advanced and better equipped than those of our modern times. In ancient Indian texts there are several stories which are incredibly detailed. These texts are thousands of years old and describe ancient flying machines used way back that the stories called Vimanas. Apparently there were several types of Vimanas with different purposes. As can be imagined if anti-gravity were a reality, a host of different aircraft and space craft would be no doubt invented to accomodate the many uses we could put them to. These ancients were probably no different and had several types of Vimanas or flying devices if you rather. In ancient Indian texts they show pictures of people flying on their own on what seem to be magic carpets and other spectacular scenes of flight. What could have inspired such pictures and such stories. Surely a primitive people with no knowledge of aerodynamics and no technically advanced science of their day could have permitted them to create such vivid imaginative stories such as these. There must have been a source of inspiration for such wonderful pictures, stories, and legends. The truth is that there was, the proof of this inspiration is scattered all around the globe for those who choose to recognize it.

Flying in our own atmosphere without the aid of an aircraft was no doubt easy for such an advanced society. Pictures drawn of people flying in ancient drawings is a spectacular picture of only one of the many things we are all capable of. Flying around like birds here on Earth is not as flaky as it sounds, trust me this reality is coming soon. The reality we decide to live in depends on our own interpretation of our limits as humans and our capacity for happiness and growth. Once anti-gravity technology is upon us, which is quite soon, we will be able to attach ankle bands or other devices to ourselves which creates an anti-gravity field around us, therefore making us immune to the natural forces of gravity. In other words will be like in the Space Shuttle, we will float, we will be weightless. To fly we will then need a simple propulsion device attached to ourselves which could be any number of already invented devices modified for human flight. It could be propellers, rocket based propulsion, or any number of propulsion methods. A more favorable alternative would be an environmentally friendly method with little noise and something light and small. Advances in the knowledge of gravity is increasing daily, the laws of gravity given to us or insinuated by the image of Isaac Newton and the apple are fast being devoured by logic. That logic being that what goes up must come down if we choose to allow it to will soon apply. Gravity is composed of waves and those waves can be modified, we just don't know how yet. Research in the right directions are soon to uncover such governing properties of the waves. Time is the only factor that is between us and space and countering the effects of gravity.

The image displays a single page from the Voynich manuscript, featuring five lines of text in an unknown script. The characters are a mix of geometric shapes, circles, and lines, some of which are rendered in red ink for emphasis. The handwriting is consistent across the lines, suggesting a single scribe. The paper shows signs of age, with some staining and a slightly uneven texture.

[illegible][illegible]

In this picture we see the figure known by the name of Horus as that is the name we have given him. The translations used to give him his name are subject to question as are the translations of so many Egyptian hieroglyphics. In this picture we see Horus... on what seems to be without question a normal boat in the eyes of modern day egyptologists. Over his head we see what a big red ball, which in all probability in fact does represent a sun as the modern day Egyptologists claim. To the left and a little lower we see the Ankh the symbol of life, and to the left of this picture we see a doorway with stars on it. My interpretation which seems far more logical than traditional ones is that the Ankh the symbol of life is representative of the sun's solar energy which sustains life when we know how to harness it's energy correctly, which these Ancients did. The solar and cosmic energy was used by the Ancients was used in many different ways. I say this after careful study and analysis of several pictures, hieroglyphics, related books and other sources such as magazines and other. The sun is often portrayed and under it we can also often see little rays which signifies the energy coming from the sun. So if we put the pieces of this puzzle together we can deduce that this picture signifies that harnessing the sun's energy gives life and sustains it. And energy can get us into the doorway that leads to the stars (space), note that this is one possible translation of the stars on the doorway or shape resembling a doorway.. There are 32 stars on the doorway if it is in fact a doorway, the star symbol not only symbolizes energy but also the stars or outer space to be more precise. The fact that I don't set in stone any one conclusion should lead you to the truth, and that is that I am not misleading you. When an author dealing in such a subject goes into too much detail about any one subject and each subsequent detail relies on the previous detail in which he is not certain is correct will lead to errors without question.

One thing is sure the energy of the sun was harnessed by the Ancients and used as an energy source. This energy was also used by the Ancients to sustain their bodies as well. That may sound impossible to us, but photosynthesis at the moment is not quite understood by us yet and it's process. If it was we too would know how to use the sun's energy to convert it's energy into food for ourselves exactly like plants do. Plants receive sunlight and use it to create food and oxygen, plants are alive like you and me, yet they don't require any other food to live. Methods for using the energy from the sun to fuel the body is most likely something that was common for the Ancient aliens. The great pyramid in Egypt was also a tool to convert the sun's energy into a productive energy source. In the next picture we will see how they may have put this energy to use.

In the picture above we see 4 monkeys on the left, 2 of which are sitting on a box like structure with 4 power cords or energy transferral extensions. These are guesses at the obviously technical aspect of this device. Judging from the symbols included in the code below the picture, the picture must have something to do with flight, space flight in particular because there are several spacecrafts in the code, several which have the Egyptian Eye under them. This eye must mean something to the effect that this ship was a ship which represented a certain species of alien, most probably the type that seemed to be predominant in Ancient Egyptian pictography. Or quite possibly the Eye could be telling us to look at the parts of the code where there is an eye. This will be checked in case this is something to look into so to speak. In the meantime let us look at the many symbols contained in the picture above. To the right of the monkeys we see a large generator looking apparatus. This object is seen often in Ancient Egyptian pictures, in my opinion it is an energy conductor of some sort. It may also be used to produce anti-gravity as the symbols in the code below it would indicate. In one of the symbols in the code we see a symbol resembling a space craft and five dots underneath it's hull, below these 5 dots we see 3 larger circles. I think that this represents the craft repelling gravity, the 5 small dots being the effect of the conductors in the craft repelling the gravity and the 3 larger circles represent physical matter. To the right of this pictorial we see a circle with a dot in it with rays underneath it. I think this represents the sun giving its rays and creating photosynthesis on the leaf underneath, the leaf as I refer to may also be a boat paddle, the intention of the symbol is unclear to me. However the reason I say the circle is a sun is due to the fact that the sun and rays underneath the sun is portrayed very often in Ancient Egypt. The sun's rays were apparently very important to them, as the sun is an abundant and limitless energy source, harnessing it would be easy for a sophisticated alien race no doubt. The next large object or device on the right of the conductor is a device I am having trouble discovering it's use, it resembles the ankh of Ancient Egypt so it might be a technology used to aid in maintaining youth for the aliens and keeping their bodies eternal. To suppose that the aliens had developed a way to stop the aging process or to put it more simply they learned how to stop the biological clock that ticks in each of us is probable. If this race of aliens lived for let's say twice the number of years modern humanity has been technologically evolving on Earth, then we can suppose that the level of advancement would be extremely significant. Imagine adding 2000 years to the present year 2004. In 4004 do you think we will have discovered the key to eternal life, the many marvels of DNA, the healing powers our energy fields that surround our bodies possess. It is most likely that by 4004 we would have all these capabilities and more. To suppose that these aliens who in the first place had brains far larger than ours had such a technology is very simply quite natural. They were probably so intelligent that they could see into the future by manipulating space and time, however speculating beyond the evidence that I know of is not something I will get into. I cannot make presumptions on their other capabilities than from what I can see as evidence in the traces they left behind.

The next object to the right is what would seem to be a jar with 2 white shapes on its front. If this is its true use (a jar) I cannot be sure, it must have been used to hold a technological device or possibly it was itself a technical device of some kind. The symbols below the object have not left me with any conclusions. It is to be noted however that one of the symbols below this object I discovered is meant to mean a spermatozoid, (sperm used to procreate). In the symbol glossary you will see this symbol and its translation as well. I am not saying that the jar however was used to hold this substance or anything like that however it is one of the many symbols below the object., Further study may produce answers to this object's purpose. The next object to the right is a technical device, at first glance it looks like a wine glass or chalice. However this device is much more than that no doubt, a gravity controlling device, an energy converter or something to that effect could be its use. I do not claim to know for sure right now. The code underneath its picture will no doubt reveal its purpose. The study of this complex coding is essential to not only understanding the technology used by these aliens, but most probably we will find the means and directions on how to contact them. Sacred Geometry is something that was practised by this ancient race, geometric forms are found throughout Egypt. The mathematical and geometric equations used in the building of the Osirian Temple, the pyramids of Giza and other important monuments in Ancient Egypt leave no doubt as to the use of sacred Geometry. For those of you who are not familiar with Sacred Geometry, it is the study of the geometric forms that make up our universe. More information on Sacred Geometry will follow in the pages to come and its involvement in Ancient Egypt, Mexico, Peru, India and in many ancient sites around the world.

In this picture we see 2 Ancient Aliens holding obviously alien children. Look at the shapes of their heads, their stomachs are also peculiar as they each have a larger tummy than usual like their mother. This larger tummy was also sculpted onto the following statue of an Ancient Alien. The child in the middle has a head like the child on the left however a part of the carving was damaged and the child's head has a round bump on the bottom part, however without the bump it would look like the other child. The third child on the right has a similar head. Notice the sun in the carving, the sun played an important role for the aliens, it's rays are portrayed, symbolizing the life giving energy it provides.

The picture of the statue above is a statue of An Ancient Alien, the head is shaped like this as well in several of the pictures of what we call the Amarna Period. Several pictures of aliens with similar heads exist in this Amarna Period, as well as babies and children. Their stomachs and heads are shaped differently than normal humans, not only the adults are like this notice that the infants are shaped the same way.

In the above picture we see a male adult Ancient Alien on the left, we can say this due to his facial features and his hat on his large head, if he really had a small head underneath the hat would most likely fall right from his head. So logic would say that this picture is not a forgery, creating such an elaborate forgery would be quite fancy for such a supposed primitive people. To recreate anatomy for both adults and infants in such a way would serve no purpose in my mind, and so I wonder how a supposed primitive people could have such incredible imaginations to come up with such a well put together fantasy that fits together so beautifully and defies modern logic. Logic back then and logic now is basically common sense, they obviously had common sense and were not fanatic cult-based brainwashed buffoons as we are led to think. They were a beautiful expression of everything an intelligent life form could be, flying, thinking, art, music, love, universal understanding and simplicity. There may have been some bad in them as well, I don't know them personally so saying they were perfect in their ways would be an assumption, I can say from what I see in their writings, pictures and monuments, is that they had an understanding of the basic framework of the universe and the properties that are in it. For one they understood that geometric shapes equalled beauty in the subconscious mind of people, mathematics was something they used in all necessity and to a degree of proficiency which must have been advanced judging from the measurements and cuts used in the building of some monuments in Ancient Egypt. Phi was used in the pyramids, the Golden Mean, the Golden Mean Spiral which are geometric as well as mathematical wonders that appear on Earth in some ancient sites, the spiral is a universal shape that is the shape galaxies take, energy's basic shape is the spiral, seashells come in spiral shapes, whirlpools, and many other objects and events in nature. The Oseirian Temple in Egypt is one of those places. An ancient carving of The Flower of Life is engraved on it, the Flower of Life is the most important geometric shape and the mathematics incorporated into this shape are incredible, for such an ancient and supposedly primitive people to have known this symbol, and not only to have known it but to have incorporated the intelligence behind the symbol into the fabric of their massive temples, which by the way we would have one heck of a time in duplicating even in this technological era. The stones incorporated into this monument and others like it are massive, they are so heavy to lift even one of them would take the biggest crane in the world, and even with it it would still be difficult to position it and all. The most logical way in which lifting such stones would be to neutralize the effects of gravity upon the huge megalithic stone, transport and maneuverability would then be simplistic in comparison with the modern alternative approach. We must all wake up! We must all open our eyes. It is time! No longer must we sit in silence, we must no longer live in fear. The absurdity of many the things we are taught to believe and accept these days is overwhelming. The absurdity and grandeur of the things I am writing in this book are not absurd as some of you reading may think. In fact they are right on the money. In fact to show you just how right on the money they are please go and get a 1$ bill, an American $1 bill. Yes that's right... If you don't have one look for a picture of one on the internet. Ok, now look on the back of this $1 bill what do you see? Look on the left of the bill, you will see a pyramid. There is some Greek writing around it which I have not translated myself. But that is beside the point, notice the top part of the pyramid with the "eye" in it. Notice the shining light around the capstone of the pyramid which is elevated above the pyramid, the capstone is floating over the base as if it were about to land. The ancient Egyptians, or Ancient Aliens, incorporated the "Eye" into many of their hieroglyphics, in fact a lot of them. In my opinion the pyramids, especially the Great Pyramid is the most amazing thing we could ever think of. Each block incorporated into the pyramid is constructed with a geometric Golden Mean, in other words the cut of the blocks that make up the pyramid were cut with measurements that are universal. The prayer that we all say in our heads and at church and before meals, which is "The Lord's Prayer" says "On Earth as it is in Heaven". On Earth as it is in Heaven is stated many times in Ancient Egypt, in fact the goal of the Ancients was to bring the universe down onto our planet by incorporating the universal knowledge (knowledge and fabric of the universe) into monuments and hieroglyphs in physical or material form if you will on our planet. By doing so they have brought heaven (space, the universe, love, the heavens) onto our planet. To deny this fact any longer is in fact denying our own right to go to heaven, which is in fact in other words to know the fabric or main building blocks of the universe, which include space, time, spirit, love, material form, energy, and so much more probably. The super hero who can fly like superman is within each of us whether we realize it or not. The Ancients could fly without the aid of planes, spacecraft or other, notice the picture below which includes an Ancient Alien with wings attached to his body. Notice the wrist bands on his arms, while these may have been just wrist bands, in our modern day assimilating anti-gravity technology and putting wrist bands on which neutralize the gravity around ourselves, such wings as we can see in this picture would be absolute perfect means to propel us through the air in the exact way other birds do, we can all fly my friends, we all dream of it at night often. Why do our subconscious minds dream of it? We dream of so many things and in all probability they are all possible. Understanding physical reality, space, time, and the laws of physics are all rudimentary and simple to the Ancients, the records they left behind show us what to do. Understanding them is upon us, whether we learn the secrets of the universe now ourselves or with their aid, it is but a matter of time before we are all set free from the boundaries we are all living in. Love, compassion, understanding of our potential, and the relatively uncomplex simplicity of the universe shall be understood by all of us soon. We already understand it in the backest reaches of our spiritual bodies. Yet we have yet to manifest what we feel inside in the totality of our souls. Do you remember being a child and drawing with a spiral game, not all children have had this game, but I remember that I loved that game. It is a game where you draw spirals and spiral shapes and other geometric shapes using a variety of tools. I remember how beautiful they were, in essence all beauty on Earth is represented geometrically whether we realize it or not at the present. The energy or emotion we feel when looking at something beautiful derives from the basic building block of that geometric expression. To better comprehend what I am saying here, a basic knowledge of sacred geometry is in order. I have not completed my study on it yet, but will before the end of this book. A simplistic yet complete explanation for what I have just written will be given later on in the pages to come. Have you ever heard the phrase everything has its place in the universe. Well I think that is true. I also think that our place in the universe is about to be transformed into something more incredible than anything any of us can imagine at the present. Our newfound understanding of all this in existence will soon push aside any boundaries we currently have. Eternal physical life, living without the need for food, sleep. Flying, visiting other planets, going back in time, all these things will become possible, yet most probably a new way of seeing the universe will entail a newfound set of laws and universal acceptances as well as a simplistic way of life that will need to be respected and achieved in order for all of us to be set free. Only upon all of us collectively accepting this reality can we be all allowed to benefit from this beauty which does without a doubt exist. Notice the simplistic way of life and beauty that the Ancients seem to share in the pictures we are left with. Sex which is fun is also an important part of life for the Ancients, if it wasn't fun we would not all like doing it, right? However a respect for the consequences of overuse of anything must be realized in any good thing, which seems to be what the Ancients did, they respected all things. In my opinion the pictures and monuments left behind are a jigsaw puzzle for us to put together, instead of putting it together for us and just coming back to visit us and show us all the things they know. They are letting us put the puzzle together ourselves, which will make us so much stronger and make us be so much happier when we discover all things possible. Also our spiritual makeup which is in my opinion unique even to those who created us. Any new energy form will have a different energy sequence or series of energy waves. Our DNA construction in each human is unique, while some creations can be extremely intelligent like the Ancients were with their huge brains, they may have been inferior in spiritual quality than humans on Earth. Or atleast their spiritual potential was lower. However in the pictures left to us, we see not only Ancient Aliens with large brains but also with normal sized brains, these individuals may have been our equal in energy and DNA makeup, to say so right now would be an assumption. They could have been more spiritual, which is probable as a whole, however the fact that there were more individuals with normal sized brains in Ancient Egyptian pictures suggests that they were the most appropriate creation for our environment. When you think about it, for doing sports and for other conveniences having such a large brain is not exactly aerodynamic. The universe is vast so having such a civilization of large brained aliens is normal. In the pictures in the Book of the Dead or the Book of Life as I think it should be called we see aliens with many different appearances. The Egyptologist or "old way of thinking" is no longer a suitable explanation for the pictures we see.

Thousands of people around the world are awakening slowly and some quickly to the fact that something doesn't quite make sense in Egypt. As most honest archaeologists and Egyptologists will admit to The Ancient Sumerians and Egyptians seemed to have just appeared from out of nowhere with their whole language system completely intact. There was no evolutionary process leading up to it. If that doesn't drive home the fact that they came from outer space, maybe the next fact will. How come all the methods of building huge pyramids like at Giza suddenly stopped and other incredible monuments like at Abydos? Where did the techniques for building pyramids and other megalithic structures vanish to? They all vanished because the aliens went somewhere else and brought their knowledge with them. The only reason they left us what they did on Earth which is in part the Book of Life is so that once we were smart enough we would understand what they left us. To understand the hieroglyphics and symbolism included in their language demands not only calculated smartness but spiritual understanding. These were a deeply symbolic and loving people if I have not totally misread everything. After all the books I have read I sincerely hope that is not the case. When I say books that I have read I do not mean that I have adopted modern explanations for the way the Ancients were, I am referring to a totality of what they have left behind. The pictures in Ancient Egypt are very indicative of the fundamental things humans feel on Earth. We see flight very often in Ancient Egypt. Humans treasure flight, those who fly feel free like they have been released from the prison that gravity holds upon us. They can soar through the air like birds by the aid of parachutes and other devices currently in use to help us to experience flying. True flight as we see in pictures in the Book of Life will someday be upon us. What I mean by that is adopting anti-gravity technology with artificial wings, flight will become a reality, we will literally be able to fly just like birds. Adding weights at specific areas on our bodies in addition to the weight of our artificial wings when combined with an anti gravitational field surrounding us we will be able to fly exactly like eagles, crows, and other majestic birds of flight. This in my opinion is exactly what the ancient aliens did. Look at the picture below and notice the wings, in all hieroglyphics practically we see birds, wings of birds, feet of birds, flight was something treasured and a part of the makeup of Earthly life. Probably fulfilling a sense of wholeness for any being on any planet requires a sense of freedom to express their innermost feelings, on Earth we feel like flying sometimes. When you feel really good sometimes it was almost as if you were flying, you are soaring through life. Imagine if it were possible for all of us at any time.

In this picture of the Book of the Dead we see many things, for one we see a few different alien species or races or creations might be a more appropriate term. On the top left of the picture we see together a feather a sphere or circle and a snake (or what seems a cobra to be more precise). After reading a lot of material on Sacred Geometry which in essence is the science involved in the creation of the universe. Literally all life contains geometry it is the building block of the universe, it can be found in all things created. The feather in the picture top left represents the spiritual need for flight, the sphere or circle represents the most fundamental geometrical shape, the sphere, which also can mean the sun. And lastly is the snake, the snake is my next important field of study, the dna make up of the snake or cobra may hold the answers to our planet's past and history and the secrets of the universe. As odd as this may sound each creation on Earth has something unique to it which adds to our knowledge of everything that exists around us. The fact that the snake is represented so often in so many ancient sites worldwide means that it has great importance. First of all the snake coils up into a spiral shape, the spiral is a shape which appears again and again in the geometrical creation model dictated by sacred Geometry. Spirals can be found just about everywhere in nature, in seashells, in pine cones, in flowers and in so many places. Galaxies are formed in spirals, the chakras which make up the Aura that surrounds the body is composed of spirals of energy. Energy itself when examined under photographic lenses reveals that energy in its most basic form is a spiral shape. The Giza Plateau itself is not aligned according to the stars of Orion either as many Archaeologists now believe, but it is my belief that it was planned and mapped out on the ground according to the shape of the Spiral and other Geometry. The phi ratio and so many other geometrical facts are included into the Giza Plateau which indicate that Geometry was used again and again in its planning. The 3 pyramids are laid out as they are to imitate the curve of the fibonacci spiral. In fact the major monuments involved in the plateau are involved in this Geometrical configuration in one way or another. It is not a matter of putting many pieces of a puzzle together where there actually is no common thread. The mathematical and geometrical brilliance of the Giza Plateau is unparalleled. The Flower of Life which is one of the most basic and fundamental building blocks in creation and one of the most advanced Geometrical symbols is found in Egypt. It was used and incorporated into the Giza Plateau and it's construction countless times.

The snake not only represents the spiral shape but is referred to in many ancient texts as representing the kundalini which is known as our "lifecycle". In its most basic form "lifecycle" most probably means energy, and the driving force behind life. This force is what we like to call God or energy or the universe's energy from out of which emerges all things. If the snake is representative of this lifecycle in so many ancient sites then there must be a good reason why the snake was chosen to represent this lifecycle. It could be that the creation we know as a snake is a representation by our creators (the ancients) of the "lifecycle" at work in both the spiritual, mental, and physical world. A snake sheds it's skin and then has a new skin. This manifestation could be representative of renewal and rebirth. In my opinion our true goal on Earth is to gain knowledge of the many animals and wonders of nature and to incorporate their existence into the very fabric of our beings as they are an integral part of our lives and the planet we live on. The snake can survive several days without eating, it's digestion process is slow and it can eat prey which is quite large. It has venom which can kill almost instantly with some prey. This venom which we consider so very deadly could however be the most important ingredient in our very understanding of the universe and we might not realize it. There is sacred geometry in all living things putting the shapes and information together with the information gathered from the cells of snakes may prove to be the key to many of the ancient alien references about snakes.

The following pictures were taken by myself while in Egypt and help to present further physical evidence of alien visitations in Ancient Egypt.

This photo looks almost exactly like a grey alien as we see in movies. This is a stunning revelation from Ancient Egypt. This alien was right there among other Egyptians who in all probability were also aliens. As crazy as that may sound due to the misinformation we have been fed by Schools and Egyptologists for the past decade. If you look at many Ancient Egyptians in books and wall paintings you will notice an elongated skull and long fingers, you will also notice larger than normal thighs and thin slender necks. This is most common in the Amarna Period of Ancient Egypt.

This alien looks like he is on the phone almost. Who knows that could be what he was actually doing, phoning home... In any case he does not look human at all. Notice the long slender arms and long slender legs. Also notice the large almond shaped head. I also took this picture in my trip to Egypt. Throughout my visit I visited several ancient temples and tombs this was on one of the walls in one of those temples.

It seems that Egypt is not the only place that has been visited by Aliens in ancient times. This plate called 'The Lolladoff plate' is a 12,000 year old stone dish found in Nepal. It clearly shows a disk shaped UFO (top of pic, hard to see from the angle of the plate however). There is also a figure on the disc looking remarkably similar to a Grey alien. Notice the spiral galaxy shape as well, with the alien inside it and the ufo at the beginning of it. Galaxies come in spiral shapes and throughout India, Egypt and Peru and other ancient sites the spiral shape is very often seen. This galaxy spiral is probably there to tell us that they flew here from another galaxy, but more probably the spiral was their symbol signifying their knowledge of the universe, as the spiral is the most widely recognizable shape in the universe and in its creation. The spiral shape also signifies energy. The spiral is a geometric shape found in many places throughout nature, in many ancient cultures it is portrayed and given great meaning. Two of the most popular spiral shapes however not always circular or curved in shape are the Fibonacci spiral and Golden spiral. The spiral is also well represented through sacred geometry. The spiral holds many mysteries, and its shape is universal, its constant depiction in ancient texts, pictures, and symbology is obviously of great importance.

Ancient Australian rock paintings of "Vondjina", the mouthless god of creation... All over the world, ancient drawings of beings with large, round heads have been discovered often with lines radiating from them. Were these helmets of some type? Obviously you can see that they look like the now-famous "grey aliens" that so many people have claimed to have witnessed around the world. The alien bodies seen at the Roswell ufo crash were said to have looked like the grey aliens as well. Why would it be so out of the ordinary for them to exist? Evidence is everywhere, reality is right in our face, and we keep turning away. At least those who we want to listen are turning away. But they are no more naive than I possibly, maybe they know that they exist... And the only reason they keep acting like it is a foolish idea is to encourage people to abandon the thought of ufo's life elsewhere than on Earth.

The picture on the left comes from Ancient Egyptian paintings on walls in temples in Egypt. Notice the black arrow pointing at a bizarre looking (Egyptian) with big almond shaped eyes and a strange body. What is this creature doing in this ancient Egyptian temple. This is not a doctored photo, you can look up this picture in Egyptian books. This is clearly not a human, yet he is right there in front of us. Can we truly continue to deny what is right in front of us just to satisfy our vision of what is normal? One of the most saddest facts of humanity and all of us have it, is that we deny truth and things which seem to be out of our reach even if we know that they are truth. To a certain degree we all do it to protect ourselves from feeling inadequate within ourselves and in relation to society and the rest of the world.

This is a picture I took in Egypt, notice the heads of the 2 figures in the picture. The abdomens of the 2 people or aliens is also different. It is stuck out a bit, many of the pictures in Egypt portray what I am positive are aliens and many of them have larger stomachs than a normal healthy human would have, they are not a cause of obesity. They also often have larger than normal thighs in association with their bodies, in comparison with normal humans. This picture shows 2 young aliens as their thighs are proportionate.

This hieroglyph of a head, is clearly not a human head. Why would these ancients portray all kinds of alien heads and bodies all over the place. The only logical reason is that they saw them, they existed. These ancients were not a crazy religious cult as Egyptologists portray them. They were spoken of by Hermes as being the happiest and healthiest people in the land. A healthy mind does not go to such mind boggling lengths as these to carve gigantic monuments and carvings in stone with no logical reason. These people were not crazy. They were from another planet.

Here we see a hieroglyph of a hand which clearly has much longer fingers than a normal hand would have. Why would they go to such trouble to carve this hand. I think it is to say yooooo hooooo look at this hand it is not human. This is who we are!!!! It is like when you are a kid and you go by freshly put cement on the road, you instinctively want to put your hand or footprint in the cement. This is the same, it is a calling card. It is a signature. It is not a symbol representative of something else such as a word, or some other nonsense Egyptologists would have us believe.

 In this picture we see 2 heads of what are supposedly Egyptian Gods of the Amarna Period. Notice the first face, his eyes are a little larger than our's and his lips are african almost. As many other of the so called Egyptians are not like his. Some of the figures look white or like Americans almost. It just doesn't add up, when you compare the profiles of many of the Egyptians painted and carved on walls and immortalized in statues you notice too many anomalies.

Notice also the necks of both individuals. Their necks are long and slender, indicative of an alien race, as our own necks are not like these.

In this picture we see 2 Ancient Aliens holding obviously alien children. Look at the shapes of their heads, their stomachs are also peculiar as they each have a larger tummy than usual like their mother. This larger tummy was also sculpted onto the following statue of an Ancient Alien. The child in the middle has a head like the child on the left however a part of the carving was damaged and the child's head has a round bump on the bottom part, however without the bump it would look like the other child. The third child on the right has a similar head. Notice the sun in the carving, the sun played an important role for the aliens, it's rays are portrayed, symbolizing the life giving energy it provides.

This is probably one of the oldest pictures we have of a ufo, even 2 ufos. In this picture to the left we see 2 crafts. The one on the top is also see in Mexico in pottery and in stonework. Or atleast it was a craft that is very similar to this one. To say with certainty that they are the same design would be misleading as I am not positive. I am positive that these 2 shapes are not there for no reason. These are technical in design, they are also objects that have no place in the minds of primitive people. There is advanced astronomical, mathematical, and geometrical knowledge which we now use in schools which originated in Ancient Egypt. Seeing these 2 ufo pictures carved in stone is not at all surprising to me. In my opinion the pictures we see in Egypt of What we today call Gods or their Gods. We see human bodies with animal heads, and all sorts of half human half animal or reptile creatures. In my opinion these creatures actually existed. They are aliens, and they came and created all sorts of life forms on Earth such as rabbits, birds, and all sorts of creatures that we can live with. If you notice that 10 000 years ago a mass extinction occurred of several mammals or dinosaur like creatures. Many have proposed global warming as a cause. But what if there was another cause, a more logical cause. If many of these same creatures from the Pleistocene era still lived, modern humans might have a tough time living right alongside them. The Sphynx at the Giza complex in Egypt is believed to be possibly 10000 years old. What I am saying here is that the Aliens realized that a human being of our size and strength could not coexist with some of these animals. Maybe they made them extinct, freezing them like they did. You see it would be a good way, the life dies however much of the building blocks of plants and other life remains to quickly regenerate new natural life or plants and fauna. These creator Gods or aliens if you will (a better term) wanted our well being and they did this to make our lives easier. These creator Gods understand the basic building blocks to create not only human life, but life itself. Something we ourselves are not so far from understanding either. Any life or matter has energy. That energy is created from harmonic wave forms which are intermingled. The geometric harmonic waves intermingle to create matter. In all evidence we can see through the many geometric shapes clearly stamped all over the walls of Egypt that they knew a lot about Geometry. If you look at a picture of the universe and our world, you will notice spirals everywhere, in storms, the shapes of galaxies, in shells, in flowers, in plants, in pine cones, in hurricanes, in fact if you dissect energy itself and magnify it with the proper equipment, its motion is spiraling. Energy itself is in the shape of a spiral. The spiral shape is found everywhere in Ancient Egypt. Which conveys that they have a deep understanding of the universe and how it ticks.

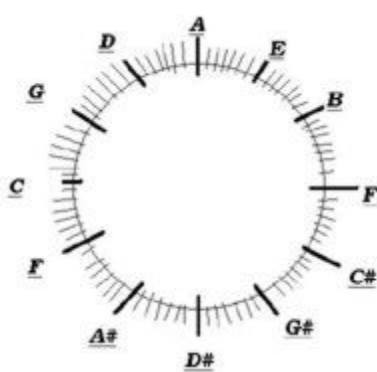

This object was found at Saqqara, in Egypt. This is one of the flying machines that we see portrayed in Ancient Egyptian paintings on walls and hieroglyphics.

Notice the spirals on each side of the object, this is a universal shape, in fact it is the most common geometrical shape in the universe. To represent it in such a way depicts their understanding of the universe, to put it on this plane could signify that they explore the universe or even created part of it. The side view of this object resembles the following hieroglyph which is found several times throughout Egypt. It looks like a plane of some sort. However I am more inclined to think this was an airship used once in the atmosphere of a planet. Ufo's of the disc type were used to enter space, however this plane type could also probably enter space, however the aerodynamics might be more suitable to an atmospheric environment.

That the Ancients that lived in Egypt could fly by way of spacecraft or aircraft is one thing. I also think that they flew with wings as I have previously said. These wings that they flew with are portrayed in the picture below. The reason I think that they could fly, is for one thing, flight is depicted in so many of their hieroglyphic paintings, stone carvings, and art. We see men or women with wings, men or women with the heads of humans yet the bodies of birds. Not only do we see people with constructed wings in Ancient Egypt, we also see people with wings that are attached to their backs in Ancient Sumeria, Greece, and other important ancient sites around the world. Look at this picture and notice the finely constructed wings.

By using an Anti-gravitation device, such as one that reduces the effects or completely negates the effects of gravity upon our bodies we become weightless, we could then therefore attach wings to ourselves of our own design and literally fly like birds. To balance our weightless bodies, small weights which are not affected by the anti-gravitational device could be strategically placed on the body for balance in flight. Tests in flight would be appropriate for realistic views on flying and the weights needed and where they should be placed.

Music Wheel set to scale 432.

When the Major and minor thirds are placed and traced into this musical wheel we come up with a shape that is a six pointed star. A geometrical shape so often seen in the world, in nature, in ourselves, in geometry and in music. By tracing the main chords in music onto this wheel you will come up with several of the most important geometrical shapes that create other shapes. Just recently I came upon a very important discovery which of course relates to Egypt as they knew many of the most important things a universal being should know. Throughout their tombs and sometimes their pyramids the Ancients portrayed Five-pointed stars on the ceilings and on the walls. However despite common thoughts as to the meaning of these stars, there is a much deeper meaning. If you look at the cute little picture I made below, you will notice the five-pointed star so often seen in Egypt. Put a head on top of the star and what do you have, you have what all us kids drew so many times, a little stick man, which represents a human. You see the five pointed star meant much more than just a star in the sky. What it actually meant in its entirety is that the aliens came from the stars and the way to contact them was through this shape as well. Also five is a very important number in sacred geometry, but first let's look at the most important reasons for this symbol. If you put a triangle around the star you get 2 arms pointed out each side of the triangle. The Great Pyramid in Egypt has 4 shafts, 2 coming out each side. The 2 coming from the King's chamber each connect with different stars in the sky. One connects with Sirius which is a place in the stars connected with many legends of extra-terrestrial contact, the most notable and credible is the one with the Dogon indians, who tell an amazing story of beings that supposedly came from this area in the sky. I could rewrite the tale here which is quite remarkable and believable but it would take a while, I suggest you do a search for it on Google, and you will find it quickly. Each shaft in my opinion may represent a porthole or telephone number if you will to phone home. When I refer to home I am speaking of the home of our creators. While I know it may sound cultish and weird to refer to some beings from another planet as our creators when we are so used to crediting such assumptions to craziness. But, I unlike many gurus which I am not, have professed, these beings left us a phone number. In my opinion the sarcophagus in the Great Pyramid which is made out of chocolate colored granite is a platform or holder for a great crystal, when light of a vibration performed within the king's chamber is rung musically the pyramid will then shoot out 2 lights from each side of such a magnitude that our forefathers will receive the message that we are now awakening from our slumber of worldly affairs, and that we have had enough, We are now ready to live in true harmony with our planet, each other and the universe. Each light will reach the planet or star system due to the alignments which are currently held by the precession of our planet in the solar system at this present time. If we were to dial home if you will any day now the message would get received. The Grand Hall of Records which so many are searching for right now is in fact the entire collection of hieroglyphs and wall paintings in Egypt. When understood which I am becoming increasingly good at deciphering is a collection of scientific and symbolic symbols which tell a story of both how we got here, how to live, and how to get home. I guess that their grand plan is to go around the universe where creating life on planets where life is possible, they plant the seed and let development take place. They probably do this to get different points of view and ideas in the long run on all sorts of things, while creating new life they also help others help them. When planets finally wake up and realize the meanings of the ancient symbols, they dial home. When light is shone through a 3 dimensional crystal pyramid you get the colors of the rainbow, the main colors in a rainbow along with some other colors represent the tones in music as well. The next diagram gives you the meaning of the colors, and the tones.

By saying that the pyramid could be a tool for contact, I am not saying that it was and could be used for another purpose. I am also inclined to think that it could be and was used to generate power in the form of electricity. It might also have been used to create ether, which is a the hardest material substance spoken of by top occultist inventors. It is said to be several hundred times denser than steel, and yet formed by evaporating water to its most basic components. The etheric vapor is in essence the substance which takes up empty space in atoms. The pyramid or pyramids could also have been used for creating vibrational energy, the fact that the king's chamber is built with large granite slabs which have crystal within them, leads to this belief. When in vibration these slabs of granite are activated if you will through the vibration of the crystals that make up the granite. When you go inside the chamber which I did myself, and you make the ohm sound you will notice that it resonates throughout the chamber like a bell. Many believe that chamber to be a musical resonator of some kind. Music truly is a universal language, when combining the right tones which are in essence vibrations at different frequencies, you might be able to use the pyramids in another way. If I am correct the pyramid could be used for several things. As the Ancients must have believed in creating one building to do several functions. A simple yet truly advanced technological tool, through using the power of nature and the Earth this pyramid can surely do many things. The fact that it was built at all convinces me of an anti-gravitational device used in ancient times. To build such a pyramid without anti-gravity seems much too incredible. I have just been to Egypt and I must tell you that one third of its people today in 2004 cannot even read, and they work in the fields. Many Egyptians have not even visited the pyramids, and many think them to be just a hunk of rock. The fact that pyramid building ended suddenly and without cause is truly the best evidence along with these simple down to Earth facts of current Egypt's society that the pyramids were built by an advanced alien race. It is the only logical conclusion in my view. Many propose that an advanced race existed on Earth and developed naturally here. But I still don't see the logic in that, if Atlantis and Mu and Lemuria which are the famous places many believe were the homes to an advanced race of humans over 10000 years ago existed how can we explain the countless ufo sightings. The many rock carvings around the world depicting strange beings, crop circles, the Nasca lines which are geometric carvings several miles long which are absolutely mind boggling. The evidence is much too powerful for any other conclusion to be reasonable. In my eyes they have left us pieces of a puzzle all over the Earth, when we are conscious enough we will put them together and contact this or these races. Currently I am experimenting with anti-gravity technology and I hope that by the end of this book I can tell you that it is done. If it is I can assure you that we will rise up together as a human race and fly in the skies. On our own and in ships we will build. The next set of diagrams involve many things I have learnt recently through my sometimes exhaustive studies of videos, dvd's, books, internet reading and more.

Atom - Notice the Star of David in the shape of the atom.

Compass - once again the Star of David represented in the compass. This current symbol helps a lot. I draw in the lines which I poorly aligned, but you get the picture.

The Great Pyramid's shadows

Cosmos flower, notice the Star of David shape in the flower, which is badly drawn by me. In reality the shape is more perfect.

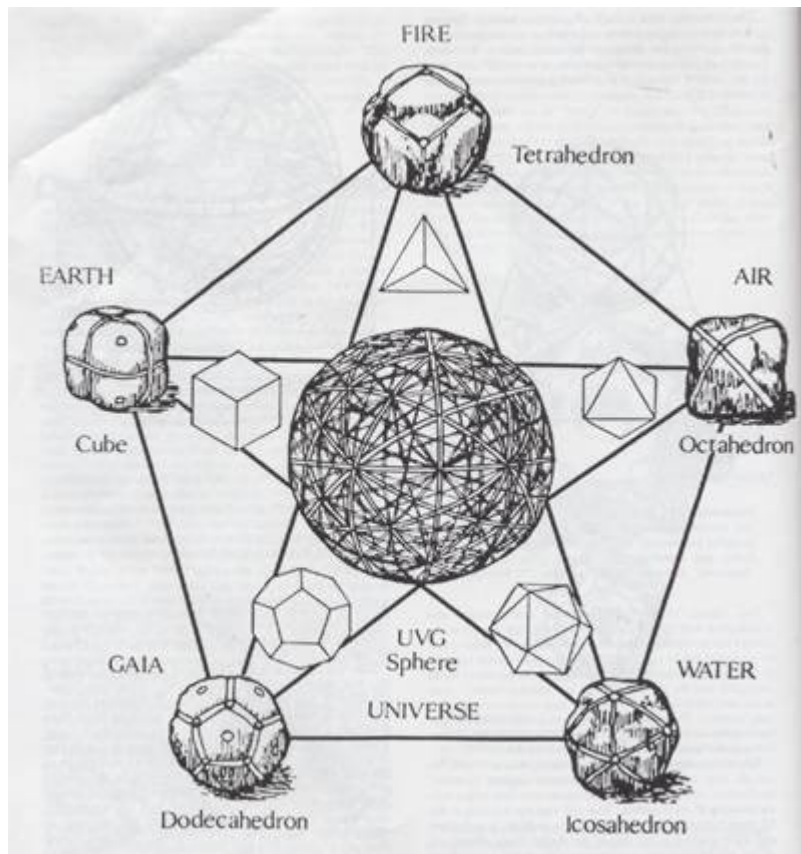

MUSIC Wheel - Notice the Star of David again in this wheel.

clock, the star of David shape is again in the clock. Time and space are now within our reach.

The five platonic solids are the five shapes which are used by our creator to create the universe. The universe it itself is represented as a sphere, or circle shape which is one of the most important shapes in the universe. It is quite simply a geometrical universe we live in, and these five shapes are used to construct all other shapes. They are the Cube, Tetrahedron, Octahedron, Icosahedron, and the Dodecahedron. Here is a picture which shows what each shape represents in the creation process.

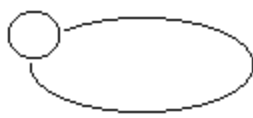

The ancient Egyptians used the Five Pointed Star such as the one above extremely often in their tombs, hieroglyphs, and wall carvings, in fact it can be found countless times on ceilings of many tombs. Here is a picture of some of them taken from a larger picture of a ceiling of a tomb in Egypt. The reason they put these stars everywhere is because they understood that the creation process uses 5 shapes in the creation process and with those 5 shapes they can create other countless amounts of shapes and designs. You can also draw a circle around any of these shapes. The circle is very important important in the creation process, and it is featured in the center of the five-pointed star above as it is also portrayed in Ancient Egypt at times. This symbol is (the five-pointed star with the circle inside the center is also a shape that has been displayed as a crop circle. Many people believe that crop circles are created by extra terrestrials. Which is in fact quite possible given the advanced knowledge of the creation process we find within the crop circles.

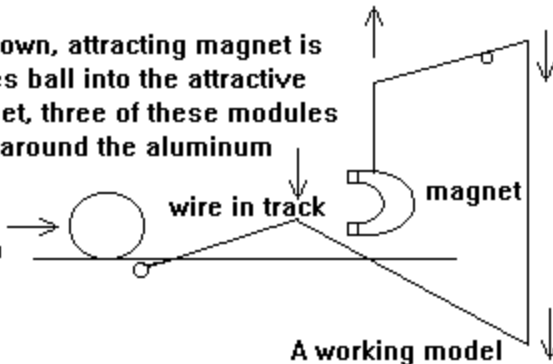

In ancient Egypt the circle was regarded as sacred. The sacred has a perimeter or circumference if you prefer with no known end. It is a shape that is eternal in other words, or perpetual in motion. You can trace around a circle forever. If perpetual motion were to be invented and in current use today it would no doubt involve a circle. In fact it has been invented by an inventor in Finland however it is not technology that has been used to any practical purpose yet. With perpetual motion we can literally power a motor of many kinds with no external power such as electricity or gas or even hydrogen. Once the gears are turning so to speak they never stop. Take your motor in your car for example should you own one of those dreadful pollution machines which I own as well by the way. The pistons which go up and down inside the motor require gas to power them to go up and down and in turn make the engine run. If an energy source or a source to create the desired motion of the pistons was created that didn't rely on gas or electricity, the world would be free of many pollution machines that we have created.

The fact is that this technology is within our reach, the truth is that it has already been created however not correctly designed as of yet to build a motor, but a little ingenuity and this will change. Here is the design of perpetual motion machine which proves that perpetual motion is possible. This machine or science project is portrayed in a museum in Finland.

25" aluminum track with 2.7" 2 lb. steel ball
3 moveable horseshoe magnet assemblies perpetual motion of 1 revolution /4 seconds

as ball pushes wire down, attracting magnet is lifted up, inertia moves ball into the attractive field of the next magnet, three of these modules keep the ball moving around the aluminum track in a continuous totally self-powered motion at 1 revolution every 4 seconds.

A working model has been running for over one month in full public view in Norway.

In Ancient Egypt the number 5 was regarded as the perfect number. In music we also have the perfect fifth. The number 5 represents also the 5 platonic solids. In the book of Genesis in the Bible it says in the Beginning was the Word and the Word was God. What is a word? It is vibrations transmitted by sound. A word is a collection of sounds put together to form something. The universe and all its creations within it are exactly the same thing. Every creation is a collection of vibrations put together to form something. So The word is God, God is a creative force which permeates the universe, he is inherent in all things it is said by the Ancient Egyptians. The Ancient Egyptians are in fact the creators of the foundation of all religions which are upon the Earth in the present. The main basic spiritual principles which started the practice of spirituality or religion or belief in God are brought to us by the Ancient Egyptians.

The five pointed star is also physically represented in the famous position of Jesus Christ with his arms outstretched. If you trace a line around a man or woman with their arms outstretched you have the five pointed star which includes the five platonic solids, the main elements air, fire, water, earth, and the planet earth. In fact Jesus was a creation that understood his creator and knew his creator, when Jesus said that when you know him you know his father in heaven, he meant probably that he himself was a creation of the Creative God force which permeates the universe. If you believe in him, (Jesus) then you believe in the basic creative force that creates all things. If you believe in him you will have eternal life he would often say. I believe he was telling the truth, as the secret to eternal life is within the circle, a shape we so well know. When we believe in him we were basically being told to believe in what you see all around you with your very own eyes. Sometimes I think that we are all actually walking around with our eyes closed. People see things which are as clear as day right in front of them and yet they don't understand. People in the back of their minds in the part of themselves that understands truth does understand what he or she sees in front of them, but he or she choosed to perceive what he or she sees in a different way.

So in essence if you believe in the creative forces or main force which directs all creations you actually believe in eternal life whether you realize it or not. All things can be created you just have to know how. Many of the things we fantasize about today are entirely possible, flying like an angel with wings is very possible. Becoming invisible, ufo's, creating a ufo, visiting other planets with life on them, reading other people's thoughts, antigravity. Turning lead into Gold, all these things are possible, we have just been telling ourselves for the past few thousands of years that it was impossible. In the back of our minds we know it is possible. We just tell ourselves it isn't possible to avoid the shame of admitting that we either don't know how to do it or that the truth of it's possibility contradicts what we have been taught throughout our lives, and it contradicts all that we may believe in. When you choose the wrong path of knowledge and head down that same road for 1000 or 2000 years it doesn't really matter, as long as you continue on that same road you won't get back onto the right road unless you start by admitting that you took a wrong turn...

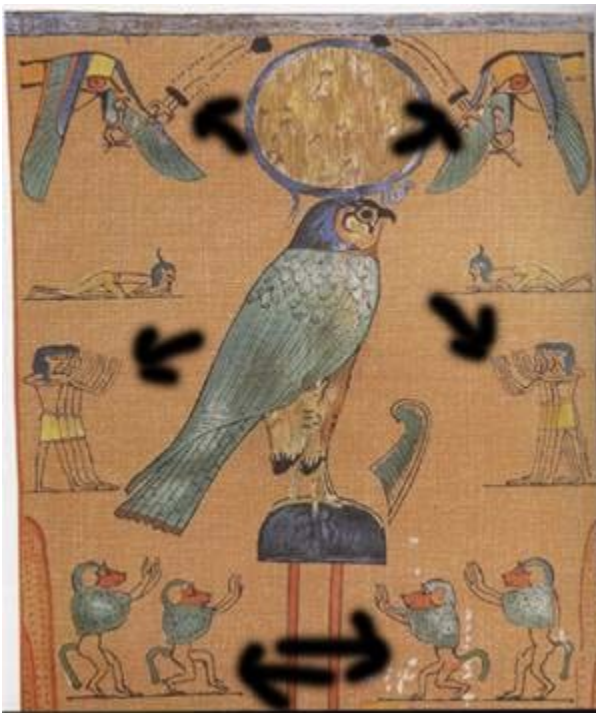

That is the first step. Once you can admit that you start to realize that the right path is filled with infinite possibilities. The truth of everything becomes apparent. And the knowledge of the Ancients leaps out at you from the most advanced scientific and spiritual books ever written. Nature is so simple and we have complicated it so much. Technology today is far too complicated. If you have a machine with 600 parts and 1 of them breaks the entire machine stops working and probably that 1 broken piece will cause other parts to break. With simple technology that incorporates truth the beauty of nature and the fundamental shapes which are used in the creation process you get simple and extremely powerful machines, energy sources, and more.

If you look at your own bodies as a collection of vibrations put together in different densities to form different material shapes and liquids and even gases you will understand and even realize common shapes which reoccur in your structure. The shapes which make up your body can all be created using the platonic solids and the circle.

The circle can be used for far more many things than it is being used for today. In ufo sightings we always hear of a disc or circle shape. The construction of a ufo were I to build one would also incorporate the circle to encapsulate the perpetual movement in a circle, the motion when made to increase in speed forever, in other words if you make the ufo so that it or something within it spins with a speed which is ever increasing you have incredible speed. To go at such a speed would mean that you would travel faster than sound, (vibration), you would in other words be probably going so fast that you would go faster than time itself. What I mean by that is that you would be able to breach the space time continuum, which would mean you would be able to reach light speeds and speeds even higher than that. You could bend space and instead of travelling in a linear motion from point A to point B you could actually bend the distance between the two and both points would reach each other instantly, like taking a twig and bending the two points or ends together.

The north and south pole on the Earth are represented several times in Ancient Egypt in hieroglyphs in tombs, on buildings and in several other places. Here is an example:

In this picture you will notice first at the bottom 4 apes or babboons I am not an expert on these animals myself but anyways they are pushing to the center on both sides. They are not worshipping as we are told in schools however they could be showing adoration and praise for the fundamental and powerful forces of nature. What I see here is they are telling us that when we are obedient to the forces of nature and when we understand nature we can fly, create new powerful technologies and understand many things. The bird in the center has a circle on his head with a snake wrapped around the circle. The snake symbolizes knowledge as the snake does in The story of Adam and Eve, he does not represent the devil as we are told to believe, this belief keeps people away from the truth. In fact I don't believe there is a devil, there is evil and good, but both are essentially varying degrees of the same thing "our inner nature or attitude" , it is like heat and cold, they are both the same thing "temperature" however in different degrees, they are both measured in the same way... on a thermometer. Love and hate are both degrees of the same thing you can love someone a lot, a little, or feel neutral towards someone, or dislike someone, or hate someone, and that can change also, they are variable. The ancients taught that there is a polarity and dual nature to all things, male and female, negative and positive, north pole and south pole, etc. There is also a neutral point or neutral center if you will which keeps these two forces in balance. In science we call this point in mechanical devices a fulcrum. If you are teeter tottering on a swing with someone on the other end, the pivot point which is in the middle of the swing is what keeps the swing in balance, for each side to stay in balance the neutral center is needed.

In the picture above we see the men and primates pushing towards the center. If you take two magnets in opposition to other and try to push them together, you need to push them together as is shown in the picture above. This fact of science or of nature if you will is very important. There is a lot of torque in the repulsion of two magnets with their like poles facing each other. This is a propulsive force, which the ancients knew about and are demonstrating to us in this picture and others and also through the hieroglyphic symbols. In this picture the bird which symbolizes flight of course is perched on a disc shape, the two rays coming out underneath the disc are neutralizing the effect of gravity on a planet or Earth in our case, they are pushing up from the Earth. The feather on the disc is another symbol in short for flight or apparatus for flight most often. The circle on the bird's head represents knowledge of the circle, as a snake is wrapped around the circle. The snake as is shown so often as protruding from the forehead of a human is not well explained in schools today unfortunately for the teachers and students. The snake represents knowledge, when we attain knowledge both spiritual knowledge and common knowledge which is related to truth or truthful knowledge the pineal gland in the brain grows or extends. This can be physically proven as some have larger pineal glands than others, many ancient cultures which had extra terrestrial roots no doubt placed a lot of emphasis on this part of the brain. In metaphysical terms of our day we call this the third eye, when the pineal gland is growing or developed, an awakening occurs in an individual and they begin to realize the truth or trueness of things around them. They begin to see the world as it should be seen, they view nature in a new way and develop a pure sense of appreciation for the things surround them in nature.

We begin to realize how people are truly feeling about us when they speak to us, and in general we wake up!!! We see things for what they truly are. The truth in relation to the picture above is that in order to fly and attain flight capabilities as the ancients had we need to find the propulsive force which is like in a magnet and use it to propel a disc into flight. A disc is only one thing we can put into flight with this simple yet extraordinarily powerful technology. We can literally defy gravity and fly ourselves like birds, which is so often depicted on the walls in Egypt, Sumeria, Mexico, and other. We apply the same technology to then disc as to a human, slap some wings on his or her back and we have the most efficient means of transport known to nature, people of any age will be able to be move around freely without feeling the burden of the Earth's gravity any longer. Heavy objects will no longer be heavy as we can apply the same technology to any piece of matter if you will. Any physical object which has weight can be lifted once you know the laws of weight and measure. In atoms there is a positive, negative and a neutral. The Earth also has a positive, negative, and neutral, in the Earth's case it is a North pole, a south pole and the core of the Earth is the neutral point or center if you prefer. The positive as in a magnet is trying to reach the negative which it is attracted to of course as a male is attracted to a female. They are 2 forces of nature seeking each other out trying to seek balance, everything in the universe is always trying to find balance. When something is in balance it is focusing on maintaining that balance. So if the Earth has a North Pole and South pole as a magnet does. If we take a magnet and point the north pole of the magnet towards the north pole of the Earth we should and will get a repulsive force an upward push if you will. This force when applied to mechanics and science is very powerful. Gravity in essence is nothing more than an attraction of inner parts of atoms trying to reach the neutral center of the Earth, in other words they are seeking their opposite pole as a male or female does, the core of the Earth is what keeps the 2 sides of the Earth in balance. However by countering this beautiful force of nature by tricking if you will the inner structure of the atoms of any given physical device or object you will get that repulsive force. So put in another way if you switch the poles of the object so that the north pole of an object's structure is facing the same pole on Earth, the only possible result is a repulsion as it goes against this fundamental principle. To recap and to put in simple terms what I am saying is that by switching the poles (north and south) of a molecule which all physical matter is composed of you will by doing so make that object weightless. You will render it in opposition with the Earth. It will be propulsive, you will not be able to make it touch the Earth.

By applying this formula which anyone can understand you can transform this idea to create excellent and very powerful propulsion methods. The many methods of propulsion and free energy systems and technologies are displayed in the pictures and what are also diagrams of this technology. The circle was considered sacred in Egypt and for a good reason, the circle is round, it turns around forever, you cannot spin around a circle and reach the end of a circle. It in a sense is eternal, they emphasized a great deal on the idea of eternity and with obvious certitude. With a circle you can do many things such as power free energy devices which can propel ships, submersible crafts, boats, and any type of flying or Earth bound body in motion. When you create perpetual motion which as shown before is possible, you get a constant movement which in turn can generate power or energy if harnessed properly. The many diagrams and pictures portrayed in Egypt give us many examples of how to harness this power. One of these devices is shown with 2 ram's horns. If you put two ram's horns together with the points touching each other you get two crescent moon shapes which form a circle. If you follow the pattern of this shape you will notice that there is never a same point of thickness around the circle, it is constantly changing. This force of nature as so obviously demonstrated to us each night when the moon appears in crescent form can be used to propel a magnet around it's perimeter when placed around the edge. If you have 2 crescent moon shapes stuck together to form a circle and you let the magnet follow the path it will constantly turn around the circle following the metal of the 2 crescent shapes provided we create the moon shapes in metal form. With a neutral center and a propeller attached to the center on a turning axis the propeller is free to spin following the moon's shapes. This perpetual motion machine is extremely simple and yet extremely powerful, it can be used to power planes of today, motors of any kind and many other things. This moon shape technology is expressed through the Ram statues and the important portrayal of the Ram in Ancient Egypt. The sacred cow is really saying that nature is sacred and when you break things down or understand them in the simplest of ways you can use nature to do absolutely anything. The universe is made of nature, as nature is made of the same building blocks of the universe as is the Earth. If you examine the structure of space you will notice that the many shapes you see in space are seen on Earth. Nature can be twisted or shaped if you prefer that term in any desired shape, it is like sand on the beach. Why do children and adults alike build castles in the sand, because they realize that they naturally can design the sand into any shape they choose and it will obey them. Nature shaping nature, if you complicate it more than that it won't work as it should. The machines of today are designed in a way which is not simple enough, they take many components which should not be used together to make something operate. The result is pollution and a distortion of nature's laws. The only result can be chaos. Take a car for example, it is a very destructive technology as it uses something natural (gas) and burns it into the atmosphere which is not natural. Some gases may probably be safe to burn into the atmosphere but not the gas we use in cars. While we are told by the media that cars are great and they are beautiful we are once again jading ourselves from our true purpose. Which is to be in harmony with nature's laws. If you disobey nature's laws long enough nature will find a way to find its own balance eventually. In the case of a planet such as Earth the way of finding balance in all its miraculous balances is to recycle itself. Which we right now are forcing the Earth to do. What do I mean by recycle? I mean the planet will wipe out everything and start over. Just like when you erase everything on a blackboard and start from scratch, the planet knows that if it does this it will start off on the right foot. I am not saying there is a brain inside the Earth thinking about this now. But eventually it is going to happen no doubt as the Ancients predicted, it is not something to fear, it is only a fact of nature. If you make something sick it will try to heal itself, remember that everything in the universe is seeking balance including planets. Messing around with the balancing act of our planet is something to be avoided. However it may be fixed if once again learn to understand nature and its laws. Anything is possible with nature when you understand it. Remember the phrase fight fire with fire. Well if you fix nature with nature you get a fixed nature, the secrets of nature are displayed in the hieroglyphs of Egypt and in the pictures.

The statues of the bird with a circle represent the circle being used as a technology for flight. A very simple design for a flying disc which is oblivious to the forces of gravity is to have a circle with something travelling around the perimeter at ever increasing speeds, this speed attained with perpetual motion accentuated by another shape in nature will create increased velocity or speed if you prefer which can propel something into the air. Of course this be done with the anti-gravity laws as well. But with nature there are so many possibilities, these are a few. The circle can be used in many ways. It can be used to create heat like the sun as well. If you have something spinning at such a great speed with friction involved the only result can be heat. With perpetual motion we can literally create a sun ourselves in much smaller size capable of heating our planet, house, or any other area, by controlling the speed of rotation of the circle or sphere in question you control the friction and heat.

Weight, measure, and balance were greatly emphasized in Egypt. In the next picture you will notice a scale showing one thing being weighed which weighs more than another object. In Egypt you must realize when you view pictures of diagrams that they tried to make a picture say many things at once. They in fact did this quite well as you will notice. When schools today teach about this picture some will say they are demonstrating how a heart must be weighed before reaching heaven. If the soul or person did enough good on Earth he will be granted access into heaven.

In a way this is not totally wrong. What they are really saying to us is that if your heart is pure you will find heaven, but by heaven they do not mean some magical place with an big head where magical beings float around and miracles happen and all that as the heaven we know (or think we know today). This versionn of heaven is unfortunately misleading, however I am not saying that the things we portray as being possible in heaven are not possible. Angels as we describe them in heaven are possible, in fact they will be possible on Earth. God in heaven does exist in heaven and on Earth. God is a creative force which is ever present throughout the universe. What God really is is a part of the atom which makes up all living things and non-organic as well call these things today. God is a force which makes up the atom, he is life. This life or what we call life is a physical property of the universe which is present in space on Earth and everywhere. God is not in my opinion some man sitting on a chair in heaven waiting to judge us. God is everywhere and in everything, he is the creator of all things as has been taught in the most ancient of teachings. If God makes up all things, and atoms are included in all things, then God is that force which binds atoms together and makes anything what it is. The white light of God is a reality, when you isolate The God particle if you will it will be white, transcluscant and beautiful, it is the life, the spirit, it is what makes you and me alive. It is what makes a dog alive, a cat alive, a mushroom alive, or a rabbit. A man or woman is no more granted access to heaven than is a rabbit or a dog. Have you ever noticed a dog can look happy when you come home, it even looks like he is smiling sometimes, atleast the expression on his face conveys happiness, this you can plainly see.

What is happening in this beautiful creation of the Creator is that the atoms or God particles are reacting to forces of nature which are in accord with its own. When this happens the atoms vibrate with the living creator and a sense of well being occurs. This is similar to striking a tuning fork with a tuning fork next to it. If you strike one the one next to it will vibrate without even being struck. Have you ever heard the expression we were on the same wave length, or that person gave me good vibes or vibrations. What is happening is that the inner most structures of the atoms which make you into the human that you are reacting to the vibrations of the atoms (God force) in the other creation. When two vibrations are in symphony or harmony the result is a song. When a song is pleasing it makes you happy. Why does everyone enjoy music because the sounds that are produced are vibrations which when akin with our own creation code react in such an way to produce feelings or vibrations within us which are in harmony with nature.

Numbers, music, color, vibrations, geometric shapes and sounds are all interrelated. Each individual color is associated with another, better said every color goes well with a certain other color or set of colors. Whether we realize it all yet, the same goes with vibrations or sound, shapes, numbers, as they are all infinite in possibility, the number of shapes you can create is infinite, but have you noticed that some shapes are more pleasing to you than others, while that same shape or piece of artwork may be pleasing to someone else. The interaction of creation codes interacting with each other through light, sound, color, shape, music is the framework of the universe, which proves the grand design method of the creator. And also proves that there is a creator and that the Earth, space, and everything we know of in the universe was created from a grand design or set of rules to follow which is called nature's laws or atleast what I call them. When Jesus said let those have eyes see, and let those who have ears hear, was very basically saying let those who are in tune with nature understand what he was saying, he was in fact trying to awaken us to the nature that is everywhere is around us, because like today many of our eyes are not truly open, because when they are open they see what is around them. The many things occurring around the world which are not good would cease were the people of the world to wake up to nature. We would see that there is absolutely no gain whatsoever in deceiving nature's laws. The only and I repeat the only result is chaos. The greater good is the only thing we should strive for as the opposite is only bad for us. If we were truly awake we would realize that and would stop doing the things which we are led to believe are good for us. The many lies told in the media and on television daily are heartbreaking. We are constantly trying to turn ourselves away from the truth. Because admitting the truth which is that we have been on the wrong road for a long time now is too hard to face. We would rather live on in this same fantasy that we are on the right track and that somehow we will survive and beat the odds. It is like the compulsion of a gambler, he knows that he can't win deep down but he keeps playing anyways. I think the true reason a gambler continues to gamble until the day he wakes up is that he is reminding himself every time he gambles that by following the fantasies of today's world and continuing to buy into them time after time leads to nothing. Even a compulsive gambler who wins a sum of money will replay it, trying to teach himself something much more valuable than what he has just won. What he has just won when he does win a sum is that no matter if you win in this fantasy of the world today, the fantasy is not leading you in the right direction, and that is why he continues to gamble. When he realizes that deep within himself he is cured. I know this because I was a gambler myself... I was also a heavy drinker and drug user from 13-16. I have been through a lot of tough times in my life which helped me to grow. Sometimes you have to go through a lot of tough times and sorrow to realize what is real and what is important in this life. I guess I went through quite enough, and quite honestly I have.

Here is another picture which is begging for translation and which I now understand. It is a very intelligent and beautiful symbol which can only be understood when you are truly awake that is to say, you realize that the fantasies of the modern world are incorrect. The basic building blocks of the ancients and of nature are what will lead us home, we need to stop fighting what we know is true and accept our failures and go towards the light, the light is what leads you out of darkness, whatever shape or form the light has when you are lost in a maze, cave, or tunnel, you will follow it to safety, I hope you understand this phrase correctly in the context that is appropriate for you. The eye in this picture is signigative of SEEING, the best phrase to describe what I mean by seeing is the phrase so often said by Jesus Christ, Let those who have eyes to see, SEE! Have you ever heard the expression Seeing things the way they truly are. These aliens were having fun it seems at the same time as imparting absolutely incredible knowledge of the universe to us. I would not doubt this at all, if you look at many of the statues in Ancient Egypt they often have soft smiles on their faces showing their happiness. It also said in ancient texts written by others than the Ancient Egyptians that the Ancients were the happiest and healthiest people they knew of. Throughout the hieroglyphs of all kinds in Ancient Egypt you will see the eye with or without the eyebrow and spiral. It is saying LOOK, and start to wake up. Which is exactly what this world needs right now, we need to wake up from our sleep. Our deep sleep that most of us are not even aware of I must say has hypnotized many of us in a way. We do not realize how jaded our vision has become. I know because I was the same before I realized these many truths. The current ways of the world, the technologies, medecines, and accepted social situations around the world are not at all acceptable. There should not be any one country on our beautiful planet that should suffer more than any other. The fact that North America knows such wealth and has for several years, and that we are able to communicate freely with countries such as Africa, and the fact that they are still in shambles over there health wise and other is not at all acceptable.

All humans are created equal. No one race of human deserves more happiness than another. It is as simple as that and everyone has forgotten that fact it seems. We have enriched ourselves to a point where we feel powerful enough to not worry about such things it would seem, which should unfortunately make us worry even more about our morality. What kind of world are we living in. Pretend for a moment your house represents America, your neighbor's Africa, you have a big nice white house, and they have a literal slum. How are you going to act toward's them? Honestly speaking you will probably be not as nice or open because of their environment. Yet you have the power to help this house and its inhabitants, yet you choose not to. It is a choice, we always, (ALWAYS) have a choice. The leaders of this planet always have a choice. Yet it seems none of them make any good ones as of lately unfortunately.

In the picture the spiral represents space, energy, and eternity, in The Ancient's way of thinking, which is absolutely wonderful, as it is filled with imagination and deep understanding of the mind. The ancients made one symbol representative of several things at once in many cases to make every symbol and phrase as valuable as possible, they were a very ecologically minded people when it comes to wasting, wasting even words and phrases in this case.

Throughout the hieroglyphs in Ancient Egypt and in other countries of deep antiquity, the number 3 is very often shown and depicted. There are a number of reasons for this which are quite important for a deep understanding of the universe. Earth is the 3rd planet from the sun, on a universal scale measuring or indentifying a planet in a solar system by it's placement in relation to the sun seems very logical. In a molecule there are 3 atoms. Each atom can be split into 3 parts and this can be done on an infinite scale, each 3 parts can then again be broken down again and again infinitely.

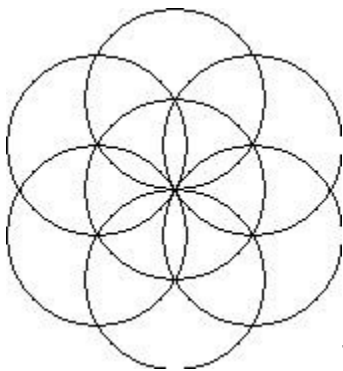

Each molecule has 3 envelopes. When we talk of molecules and atoms, these 2 things are what make up everything in the universe, the air, matter, space, stars, anything and everything, the universe is a collection of vibrations composed of molecules and atoms within them.

All forces in nature and all things have balance a positive state a neutral state and a negative state. When the positive and negative are balanced the become balanced thanks to the neutral center. Imagine a teeter totter one side a child is up in the air, the other child is on the bottom, in the middle is the fulcrum or neutral center, balance is achieved through this center, if the child in the air comes down he does so by the help of the centre point. Everything in the universe is always trying to achieve balance, those things in perfect balance are working to maintain that balance.

In a pyramid there are 3 corners, a pyramid represents trinity, male adult, female adult, and child. A family.

There are many other reasons why this important number is important, I will come back to it later, however one of the main ones is the molecule and the atom.

When the 3 envelopes which are around the molecule are drawn on paper showing their interwoven patterns that they contain, we discover a shape that we all know whether we know it or not. It is called by some the Flower of Life. It is the shape below. This shape is represented often in Ancient Egypt through flowers and in architecture and other ways. If a molecule is what makes up things and this flower shape makes up the things that make things, then the basic shape underlying the creation process is the flower of life. Of course there are many shapes involved in the creation of things but as we will see later this shape is quite amazing in its appearance in many things of this world.

This shape is called the Egg of Life by some. In the center is the part that resembles a flower. Notice the six points of the flower. The Star of David also has six points and has the same shape except that the star has straight lines unlike the flower shown here. When you draw a hexagon around the flower shape you can notice the hexagon also has six sides. An understanding of how molecules and atoms truly work and do their work in the forces of nature is demonstrated within these shapes, understanding them is the key to open literally any door you can imagine, because if you can imagine it my friends it is possible. The power of the mind is infinite, yet we have closed our minds in this age, we have forgotten that dreams are reality and reality is a dream that we create. The things we call impossible in this day and age are not impossible, we say they are to prevent us from admitting that we are capable of such amazing things. We have chosen to live in a closet where our imagination and creative natures are restricted. I can honestly say to you that if you can imagine something then it is possible. To doubt what we are not sure of is wrong. What I mean by that is that to assume in an assertive way that something is impossible just because it seems hard or incredible does not make it impossible. To many the idea of world that was round was impossible, yet it is. As that cool Jesus said let those who have ears hear. And eyes to see, see!! You see this person in our bible tells of someone who studied these things in Egypt, whether he actually had contact with these aliens is hard to confirm yet many of the stories in the bible do tend to point towards this fact. The angels who resurrected him or were by his side when he came back to life may have been aliens. To say this with certainty is hard due to the lack of pictorial evidence when it comes to this person. When we hear that he is the son of God, if the people of his time referred to the aliens as Gods, then maybe he was born of Mary who was made pregnant by God or the Gods through some form of invitro fertilization. Please don't take offense at the things I am writing right now, as they are not meant to mislead you from any course of thought you may hold dear. I am not either a member of any sect or denomination, I am not Raelian or other.

My only goal in this book and in this line of study is to find the truth. To hold onto something that seems true (like the traditional view of Jesus, God, creation, etc...will seem true to you and make perfect sense) until more information comes along. I hope that this information can help you to realize that keeping the vision that you entertain in respect to your view of this world, universe, and where you come from, is only beneficial to you if it is correct. There is no need to be afraid, I am just like you, I am seeking the truth. The truth is my friends that we can all be like Jesus Christ if we choose to be, and he often said it himself according to the words he spoke in reference to biblical texts. If you can understand that the world, the universe, our bodies and everything in existence is composed of vibrations. Then if you understand the physics of vibrations you can literally transform this world, your body, this universe into whatever you wish. Let those who have eyes see, and let those who have ears hear. This amusing phrase is not meant to confuse you, only to let you realize that if you can realize these truths you can realize the truth of many things. If Jesus could walk on water it is because he believed he could it is written, well my friends the same goes for you and me. If I believe that I can, I can, if I know a little vibratory physics it will help a great deal I must admit though. If the attractive force of the Earth is halted and gravity is nullified, then quite simply the appearance of likeness of walking over water is very possible. If the molecules and atoms that compose matter on Earth are attracted to the Earth, then to reverse the process we need to change something in the matter so that it isn't. In other words we need to change the vibrations of the vibrations which compose us or the matter we wish to float over the water. If a south pole of a magnet is attracted to a north pole of a magnet then we need to make the north pole point towards the north pole of that magnet point to the north pole of the other. This will cause repulsion, or propulsion if so desired. In a molecule we have a positive pole, and a negative pole as well like in a magnet. If you switch the poles of the molecule, the molecule will no longer be attracted to the Earth, it will float, levitate if you prefer. In other words by changing the poles of our own bodies we can trick the Earth in a way and float like Jesus did over the water. We do not have all the exact up to the second accounts of everything that went on in these stories of thousands of years ago about Jesus. The writers who maybe did not fully understand what they saw wrote down what they did understand as they understood, leaving a very interpretive version of what happened. Now that we are able to see how these things are possible, we should not close our eyes again, as seeing is believing, and believing is seeing. When a blind man sees after being blind for so long he would not for a million dollars go back to being blind, and neither should we no matter what the cost.

At the cost of sounding like a preacher or a guru, I remind you that I am not, I am a simple person who is only interested in truth, love, honesty, and the goodness of the Earth to return to it's former glory, which it shall, IF we can wake up and watch it happen...

To do good is good, to not do good is not empowering. Therefore the only goal should be to do good. Yet in this day and age it is not the case. We do things even though we know they are wrong, whether it be driving a car, smoking, watching hours on end of television, eating too much junk food, drinking too much alcohol, being mean to others, fighting. Whatever the occasion we do many of these things without realizing that they are wrong. By doing them we only hamper our growth, and can anyone give me a benefit to hampering our growth. We should not, it has become socially trendy to hamper and dampen our happiness in many ways. Which distorts reality, and in turn distorts the world and the way it should work or could work. The only benefit of bad things is badness, the benefit of goodness is goodness, why choose otherwise than goodness. There should be no hesitation any longer on the behalf of anyone. I could invent a thousand reasons why I should continue to smoke yet none of them would be reasonable or true. The time to choose is always at hand. I chose to quit smoking a while back and I highly benefited. If you choose goodness you will feel good I guarantee it like George Foreman would say.

So to think true things and to be honest with yourself should be the only avenue worth choosing, and it is. If you choose otherwise deliberately you are only harming yourself. We should stop harming ourselves, there is no reason to continue. NONE. If we continue we will succeed in the outcome of too much harm, that result is death, or extinction.

I have recently discovered the meanings of many of the different hieroglyphs in Ancient Egypt. When you look at these symbols and pictures, look at them as symbols drawn by someone or a group who is trying to express in the best way possible knowledge to a civilization who may not speak the same alphabetized words or language. These symbols are universal, as any eyes from any point of view alien or not will see them in the same fashion. A figure of a man with an erect penis symbolizes creation or the power to create, as he creates or procreates with his penis and makes babies. In other words the penis is a tool for creation. The symbol can mean tool for creation or Creator, or Creators. It depends on how the symbol is related to the other symbols beside it and the differentiations in the symbols, one man symbol can differ from another.

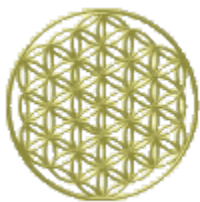

In any eyes of any person or alien, a pair of eyes is a pair of eyes, they can see, right? If all aliens have eyes? Of that I cannot be sure, but assuming they do, this would be a universal symbol. When something vibrates it goes up and down slightly or more than slightly depending on the vibration, to indicate vibration they show a line that goes up and down, it is universal in its appearance. Any alien or human will see a vibration in the same way, so this symbol is appropriate. A snake represents knowledge in the Ancient Symbols, we often see a snake coming from the forehead of an alien, this serpent was not actually coming out of his head, the serpents or "snakes" mean knowledge which makes you see from your 3rd eye. The 3rd eye which we all have, is a gland inside the brain called the pineal gland, this gland grows as we increase in knowledge of the universe, spirituality, and as we grow as individuals. The snake represents knowledge when it is coming out of the forehead it represents knowledge which leads to the growth of the pineal gland. So when we SEE things as they truly are, it is because our 3rd eye is developed enough. When they show a snake that encircles a large circle which in many cases is orange or yellow, it depicts knowledge of the circle. The circle is a very important shape as I have said before. It is perpetual in its motion, the Earth is a circle, the sun, the moon, the planets, etc. Knowledge of the circle is important, which is why the snake encircles the circle so often, it is also why the circle surrounded by the snake is placed on the bird figure so often. I will get to this bird figure later and explain more about him.

Also you will notice that in some pictures, statues and hieroglyphs we see the snake or snakes have bird faces or heads, sometimes there are 2 snakes on the forehead of the ancient Egyptian. This means that the Egyptian has acquired knowledge of the bird tribe, the bird tribe is a metaphor for the knowledge that tells the Ancient that man can fly like a bird, and become what Ancients referred to as Angels. In the back of our minds we all know this stuff I am writing here, as an example to that fact, notice throughout your days the many symbols or logos of different brands, baseball teams, etc... The Angels baseball team for example, it is a capital A with a halo around the top. The top or halo is a circle which is sacred, and is the secret key to life which opens the eternal life gateway we are all secretly or subconsciously striving so unsuccessfully most of the time to find. The circle is eternal... What do I mean by that??? Can you ever, and I mean EVER??? get to the end of a circle? No, it is eternal. The entire universe is a representation of these things that are written and painted on the walls of Ancient Egypt. Our planet, is a circle, the sun is a sphere. All the many shapes which make up our universe, our planet, our trees, our plants, and our own bodies are celestial in design. Each shape is thought of not by chance, and our own bodies are composed of these important shapes. The numbers which are integral to the shapes are also included in the structure of our bodies, our plants, trees, planets, moons, and every other facet of our imaginations if we choose to recognize these often overlooked patterns or pictures we create.

A circle is eternal. Yah Yah Yah, ok but what do I do with all these fancy shapes, numbers and grand revelations of the universe. The only thing you need to do, and of course want to do, without even realizing it is create. You are like the Creator, you are like God, you want to create, even in your dull boring job, if it is boring, and even some of the most exciting jobs are boring compared to the job of creating with nature. With all these fancy shapes my friends we need to create the future, it is our set of building blocks with shapes and numbers, we must rebecome like children and we must start to play with our building blocks again and we must identify shapes and numbers. As when we stopped playing with these blocks and foundations of our own creative abilities we actually quit our most important job. A job where money is not an issue for humanity and is never wanted as an issue. It is not needed, nature is the system through which we reward ourselves and each other. A lush green grass on dewy spring morning and the sweet scent of lillies blossoming is a much greater reward. The ocean, it's waves, it's sand should not have to be paid for to be enjoyed, these idiotic, complicated complications of how life should be are utter nonsense. No one should have to take a plane, which is dangerous enough with all it's hundreds of parts dependant on each other and easily breakable, to get to the beautiful ocean and sand and sun, we must get there on a vehicle which does it's part in destroying the environment it is actually leading us to that we paid to get into. What kind of a crazy contradiction have we accepted to live in. Are we all gone crazy, maybe instead of admitting it, we would rather block out or erase all attempts to prove that fact.

This shape is called The flower of Life in modern times, it is a shape well recognized in the field of Sacred Geometry. Inside the circle are six points which touch the outside of the circle from the center outwards which form the star of David. This shape has been formed in Crop circles, it is also a drawing that was found in Ancient Egypt on a very ancient (old) temple, near the Sphynx and pyramids at the Osirean Temple, that may be spelled wrong... but anyways you can check it out. Many flowers and shapes in nature contain geometry found within this shape, the technology of the day that will save the day can be formed only with nature embedded into it, this shape is filled with the components which will shape our future success.

This picture is referred to by many as the eye of Ra, it is a symbol often seen in many tombs of Ancient Egypt. It is synonymous with Egypt and what it represents is astonishing as these amazing people surely are. The eye in this picture represents not one thing but several, for one thing it is saying look!!!! Look with your eyes, Open Your Eyes, As we often hear this life is a like a dream and he who awakes in the dream controls the dream. When people say that they are making their dreams come true, this is what they are in fact saying. They are awakening in their dream making it a reality.

Ok this is ONE interpretation of the Eye of Ra. Here is another which is REAL just as the Color Blue is Blue and not Green...

The Eye is a component that was used in Ancient Egypt for creating Free Energy. The Center ball of the Eye was a granite Ball of a Ball of Weight regardless of composition. The encompassing oval part of the eye is actually a cup on the top and bottom of the eye. The wire extending out towards the bottom right ending in a spiral, is actually a wire which transmits the energy that is created from energy machine. It is a pictographical representation designed to stimulate our awareness. The top part above the eye and to the right is a representation of a wing or a half of one of their spaceships. If you take this shape and put another right beside it on the left you will have a disc shape. Lastly the staff on the bottom of the eye could be used or may have been used to transmit the energy or to store the energy. To tell you the truth I am not quite sure right now, but I imagine that that may change.

For those of you with no knowledge of free energy machines, or the mechanics of creating electricity, batteries, and other forms of power naturally with nature and without a constant need for fuel, or an external power source.

A good example of free energy at work, is a solar panel that takes energy from the sun and makes something operate such as a calculator. To be able to say to you that this is what this picture represents.

FACT: If the Ancients could invent some complicated pictorial language and produce wall paintings of such complexity how come today these things are not produced any longer. No one truly understands these hieroglyphs in their entirety that I am aware as of yet. I have been in Egypt and many there cannot read. Where did all the pyramid building go. Why would it all stop all of a sudden. The reason is because they developed or already had technology to leave this well-studied planet of theirs to go exploring which is a natural curious implusion of intelligent beings. Whether they developed the technologies or they had them already and left us some of these text and drawings to rediscover it is not the point. To find a reason to stop reading this book should not be considered as if you consider the many truths up to now that you have probably I hope realized.

Do not be afraid of some of the concepts you read here. I don't want to scare you I want to help you. I don't want to brainwash any of you. My goal is a better world where advancement without fear of liking things that make us feel good is wrong. If you feel good when you kiss someone it is good. We need to go forward now and embrace the love and incredible things we are capable of. Here are some things that we will be capable in the near future in my opinion. Manipulating matter... In other words passing through solid matter, like walking through a solid wall.

Flying like Angels, as angels are simply humans who have awakened to the natural abilities which can be attained when nature is studied to the full extent and possibility offered to those living within it. Creating magnetic fluxes with magnetic fields large enough to create lift is a simple fact that can be transferred to ships and more. Vibration physics and the application of sound to crystals, the decomposition of certain elements to isolate parts of their structure can reproduce substances which permeate the thoughts we think. The mind force which invented thought is within our grasp, we just have to will it and want it. A team of like-minded men and women under the influence of truth and a realization of the Law of One can create and do absolutely anything. When will we stop limiting ourselves, we are the future, we are the creators guided by the grand creation we are living in. The creative mind force which permeates our very beings is aching with anticipation for its time to come. It is wanting to act and it wants to be set free. Imagine flying through the air with birds, hearing their cry and knowing that that cry was a thrill of joy as it glided on a warm current of fresh smelling air. A bird doesn't worry about stuff it needs not worry about it acts in its own interests. Can I be honest with you and tell you that birds are possibly more intelligent than us quite sadly. They are waiting for us to join them and to lead them to a world where perfect harmony antiquates all beings into the one loving energy this energy should be generating and attracting like minded intelligent civilizations from other planets, solar systems and galaxies.

What is the utmost thrill in your dreams?? Flying?? For most that is the answer. Can you fly?? Of course you can. It may have taken only a few months to develop a technology such as a hand glider. This innovative yet unsafe technology is a eye opening smidgeon of the possible implications we have neglected in this respect. After a few months of innovation I imagine this glider was made. How many more months and years were devoted to anti-weight technology, probably much less. We need to fly. We want to fly. Why do we do less than fly on our own. Leonardo Da Vinci understood that it was possible and he did fly like a bird.

Was he more extraordinary than me or you, of course not, he was flesh and bone like anyone, and I hear he was not a Shwarzannegar either, sorry Arnold for the spelling. We must stop giving ourselves excuses for continuing our unabated sleep. We are put to sleep each day with television programs, bad news at 6 o'clock and boring jobs. Do you want to live truly like Gods, do you want to fly, do you want to go further than your dreams at night do. You can, get books, get lots of books. Is it nerdy to read? That is like saying being intelligent is stupid. Now please reread this last sentence. Society is totally screwed up, we are totally gone nuts. It is a good metaphor which I will equate to our current blindness to the path we continue to walk on and follow. For hundreds of years we have been walking blind and not only that but on the right path. People have been dying in wars losing their lives in boring jobs, the blacks have been enslaved, the jews killed and so much suffering for absolutely no reason. Is it better to continue to kick yourself in the ass for your mistakes of the past. OR say ok I have screwed up enough, let's start living. We have had enough garbage let's band together and start smiling, flying, thinking, and let's start opening our eyes.

What is it going to take for us to wake up? An 8.3 earthquake which kills half our civilization. Have you been wasting time watching news and making excuses as to why the world is the way it is. The origin of our kind is clear. Now that we know where we came from and the path of truth that we need to follow. There can be no other path, as there has only and always been one path which leads home. That path has been found, walk on it now with me and with all of humanity. As we step through a gateway which will enable all our most beautiful loving thoughts, emotions and sensations fill us entirely with pure light of the ether which we cannot (at this time see) fill our lives.

Open your eyes and ears. God is within you, you are God, you are Jesus. Stop waiting for Jesus to come back and wash away your sins and give us all peace on Earth. Jesus is now among us, he is found. He is the pure body and blood, when you purify yourself as you know you can you will see with the same eyes Jesus did. Please be aware that Jesus may return someday, I do not know. I do know that I am here, I am typing these words. I can do absolutely anything I can imagine. So if I imagine I can do what he did, I can literally learn everything I need to and do it. Why not? I am you, you are me. Let's believe and let's live. Believe in what is before your very eyes. When you see the truth accept it. When you hear the truth listen to it. If you like Tom Jones music yet your friends think it is uncool, please keep listening to Tom Jones. What feeds you nourishes you, don't starve to satisfy the fantasy of another man's appetite.

If you know how to build wings to fly. Do it. If you can advance yourself and the race of mankind in any way, and believe me anyone can. Accept it. Ready or not we the Jesus's have returned. Free energy is everywhere, the very atoms in the air you and I breathe are a living testimony to the propulsion system to launch us into outer space. Energy is everywhere, why do we keep telling ourselves and believing others when they tell us it isn't.

The many industries of aerospace or atleast the biggest ones which I am in no doubt of your ability to discover them have lied to many of us about their technologies that they have researched, developed and tested. If 50 years ago such aircrafts as the AvroCar which is a publicly announced flying disc that used wind technology was produced and built, not many were made that we know of. Then how could such a regression in technical development have taken place. The picture I am about to show you is of the Avrocar, this was built a while back folks. There is no logical reason why we as a race should go backwards in our technology unless we weren't atleast the people who controlled it weren't.

On February 11, 1953 The Toronto Star reported that a new flying saucer was being developed at the Avro-Canada plant in Malton, Ontario.

Notice the triangle that surrounds the center circle. This shape is synonymous with crop circles and ancient Egypt. The triangle with the circle in the center. Also notice the rays at the bottom of the triangle at the base on the bottom part of the picture. They represent the lift off of the pyramid or triangle shape. How long must we remain ignorant about this subject. I am afraid that most of us are afraid to confront our ignorance and fears. To remove these fears is to face our own freedom. If you reread this last phrase you will install a piece of vital logic into your brain. To accept reality is to accept liberty, freedom and true heaven. To let the powers that be and also the powers that continually lie and deceive us win is to accept enslavement of creativity, true freedom, peace and love on the entire systematic makeup of our planet. We are a healthy race, we are an intelligent, we have become puppets unfortunately which accept to be told what is true or not. Yet we all know deep down what is and what isn't true. Do you see this picture? Are your eyes really looking? Please don't just say, yah that is pretty weird, and go have a beer and watch football and forget all about it. What you are looking at is the evidence of who you are, where you come from, where you are going, how you will get there, and the origin of life. I am not speaking about this hunk of metal in itself, yet the logic that it represents. For some foolish thoughts of some power hungry individuals who thought that they knew better than the rest of the same physical embodiments as themselves, we have been hurled back into regression of reality.

While they have been doing God knows what out there in outer space and who knows what on who can say which planet. Take a look at the picture, this was built fifty years ago... Imagine a television set 50 years ago, and look at those of today. That is a poor example as the televisions which we are capable of purchasing are dependant on the economical importance of placing such television achievements at the proper times. Telepathy based television is of no doubt possible should such powers which hide such beautiful knowledge to us. How can they do it to us. We the same blood and bones as they, sit here trying to comprehend our existances daily, wondering why there is suffering here and in many places. The law of one is not only applicable to these people in powerful positions, they affect the whole, what they inherently don't realize is that by controlling a planet in a negative fashion as they are, while thinking they are acting in their own interests, they are actually destroying themselves. Everything they do to affect us and maybe other species or worlds without us knowing will one day blow up in their face, not by me or by you as we only want love and peace, deep down we must not be angry or revengeful. The true powers which govern the universe are watching their perverse and inundated dillusion and thoughts of self importance. They are wrong in hiding the truth. The time is coming quite soon when the ideas of those who think they behold knowledge to save us or keep us from chaos, will be the ideas which bring to realization the fact that chaos is only the result of keeping the whole intact. Which is what they are doing. A poor management of the whole is always detrimental to the greater whole. Remember the toy dolls when you were little, the small one in the bigger one and then the bigger one and bigger one. So is the universe. An infinite hierarchy of galaxies, solar systems and infinite energies yet all connected nevertheless. To negate this in any way can produce no truly positive result, regardless of position of importance or title of the benefactor of such decisions.

The logo of the US army is above, notice the five-pointed star... What is the most popular symbol in Ancient Egypt, the most intelligent and largest collection of incredible archeological findings to date. The five pointed star is painted and carved in countless areas in Egypt. It represents the five senses, the perfect man, (fire, air, water, wind, and the Earth) It is an Ancient symbol, one that the Christ figure embodies in his most popular posture which forms the five pointed star. This star is inside a circle, a circle is many things other than just a shape on a discoid craft that you can see above this writing. It is an eternal and perpetual shape of unheard of importance in relevancy to your future. It is the eternal, it is never ending. Try to find the end of a circle, go around its edge and come to the end point. You cannot... Which makes this shape a perfect shape for the eternal destiny of all our souls and bodies. In ancient Egypt you will not see any old Egyptians, as I have yet to see an old Egyptian in the Ancient paintings. To let the molecular cells of your bodies regenerate in a metabolic harmony in relation with the eternal is to give your physical self eternal youth. Is this hard to imagine, no... You just did... or I did and hopefully you did... Anyways, what I am saying is that to find eternal youth is to recognize that your cells must regenerate as fast they deplete, to create the pattern of regeneration and many other similar solutions of gigantic importance are contained in the hieroglyphs of Egypt. They were not crazy, they were a super advanced race who based their lives on the learning of knowledge of nature. As nature contains all known forces in use today in every known technology that is however badly fabricated in many cases.

To be in harmony with yourself and with nature is to realize the importance of following the path of truth. To keep doing something which is wrong again and again, is something which we have permitted ourselves to accept as OK... We keep fighting pointless wars... Please realize that not one war ever fought was worthy of praise, it is foolish in its most basic element. The next president of the United States is about to be elected on his ability to fight. This is utter nonsense my fellow human brothers and sisters. He is not the protector of you or me from such terrifying people around the world who wish to harm us. He is terrifying you and me and everyone with the fear it generates within us when we think of terrorists. Fear is a tool which leads to destruction not creation. A leader must be born out of a womb which embodies the leader with a sense of truthful and essential belief in the utmost truth and respect for nature, the Earth, the universe and the continual advancement of its race, and every other race in existence, known to be more evil than good or more good than evil. Nothing is completely evil and nothing is completely good. To have such a power is to defy nature which is always wrong unfortunately for those who think otherwise. The ying yang if you will of all forces or things in existence are a truth. Everything in the universe is always seeking balance. If something is at one point more negative than positive, it will eventually seek to balance itself out, as everything is a part of mother nature which is the manifestation of the etheric element which invokes existence of things and people and worlds with all things within them. Even if something is bad in our eyes and wished to kill us if be the case. To fight this person or thing is not the answer. This person or thing is only seeking balance, to put it further out of balance is to do more harm than good which is not our most beneficial action in any case.

So if you someone wants to harm you instead of fighting back, you must devise ways to protect yourself which helps the opposite force or person to achieve balance. In such a statement I mean, that if you hit me, I should devise a way of deflecting the punch so it does not hurt me, say with a magnetic forcefield which when touched upon by your fist will produce a wave of positive thoughts within you. This will bring upon a balancing of thoughts helping you to realize love and logic. This is an example of the main premise. We must make others realize what they are doing, and why they are doing it. To harm others is to harm ourselves no matter what the case may be. It is never right no matter what the circumstance. As every created person or thing is a part of the whole which is the universe governed by the creative etheric element. To deny truth of this fact is to face an imbalanced state in one form or another which affects us in one way or another. To fight is never right. To devise ways of teaching others on how to balance themselves is the only true defense worthy of use.

In the above picture we find the following section which I have managed to decipher in part. Or in another way of putting it I have managed to discover one of the meanings which they were conveying, as 1 thing can mean many things in different contexts.

In this section we find a person doing work, he is harvesting nature's bounty it would seem. He is collecting the wheat with a tool. The next part shows him or another person using 3 animals to do work within a cup like floor as seen often in Egypt represents the Earth. The next part shows the push power or propulsive power to lift the pyramid should he want to off the ground and put it into flight. The pyramid is represented by the triangle shape which is sitting upon the Earth, the bird lifts the pyramid with one claw. The next person has what I think to be an instrument of music. Or it could be another tool for work. The person uses the tool just shown which is anti-gravity, which in itself is the ability to balance the forces of nature, or the construction of the building blocks of which nature is composed of. To explain the extremely deep amount of information in each symbol would take me a while. I will give a translation of the more general meaning of the remaining pictures. First of all the colors used in this section as with many others are all intricately woven together, they all have a purpose, nothing is there for nothing. From the color of the bird to the color of the animals. Ok... The next 2 pictures are of circles inside cups which do not represent the Earth this time but are meant to represent technologies. I can see this because of the colors used to illustrate the cups. The top part represents the sun used as a means of technology, the next underneath is a picture of the Earth being used as a technology. In other words and much better said, the solar energy is used on Earth as a technology, with it we can fly and lift pyramids or anything we choose. The 3 birds represent knowledge of flight technology as they are in black, if the black of the birds is a factor in this case is to be confirmed with more knowledge. However the birds are facing 3 curved enclosures with a greenish blue on top, reddish brown in the middle and the same color as the top on the bottom. The only other bluish green item in the section is the tool or instrument of music in the person's hand. Therefore the upper and lower curved enclosures represent the tool, in the center of the tool symbols is the enclosure with the color of the work animals and the sun, also the color of the skin of the people in the picture are red from the sun most probably. The 3 little symbols of circles with lines going down from them are not clear to me. The symbols or hieroglyphic writing at the very beginning of the section is clear in part to me and they help translate this section. The circle is the third symbol with a harvesting tool, they are harvesting the power of the sun to power their spaceships or their technologies which can be used in flight, anti-gravity and so forth. I am missing the first two meanings of the beginning symbols so a deeper meaning is eluding me at the moment. Also the 3 same symbols on the far right are out of reach at the present. But slowly my eyes are opening to the natural wisdom of these universal symbols of extremely advanced knowledge of the planet we are on. To resume the entire meaning I comprehend at present...

To harvest the or to collect and use nature, and to control the working forces on Earth, when doing this to our best ability and knowledge we can make objects or people fly and be lifted off the ground. To use and understand the power of the sun on Earth is to know the knowledge of intelligent birds, in other words to know the knowledge of the ancient bird tribe. Which in fact are the angels we know from the Bible and many other books. These angels in our fairy tales could fly with wings attached to their backs, the many gigantic statues, stone carvings, paintings, and much more are a testimony to the seriousness of such ideas. To think this was all some childish fantasy of some primitive fantasy is more clearly stated in reference to the utter childish nonsense of our adults of the modern world who suppress the creativity of its inhabitants in adoration of a lesser world.

These ancient followers of the knowledge of the creative female force represented so often by mother nature in stories is the true God being we pray to in hindsight. If I were to give God a sex it would more likely be female. Females have the ability to create other life forms, they are more emotional and creative than males. Intuition and creativity and the side of the brain associated with the female part of our beings is the side less developed in our times. To suppress beauty and to underdevelop what will create the things we truly want is not a solution to our long lasting ignorance.

The mother ships which contain the smaller ships in the Egyptian glyphs is represented by this glyph in my opinion. Why would it be called a mother ship, because the God beings are within. The demi-gods or the carriers of lesser knowledge might use the smaller crafts. Everything has a meaning in nature and in Egyptian glyphs. To not comprehend the beauty and simplicity of what is before us is to deny our personal rights to accentuate the inherent beauty we all wish to feel and experience.

This section shows the deliverer of peace and knowledge and the measuring of the initiates progress. In other words the technologically advanced race or alien is measuring the progress of learning of he on Earth. To know the reason for his measuring we need to bind the sections together, but regardless we can see that to arrive at freedom is to arrive at the end of the section where we become demi-Gods it would seem.

Ok getting off-track here the main reason for showing this section above is because I think the rabbit headed God is a representation of Creation as rabbits are known for creating... The initiate is creating with the knowledge (snake) and using the creative knowledge to do work, anti-gravity, free -energy, etc... with it he navigates on a ship that contains the device which I believe may be the Holy Grail we have come to know in stories. However if this is false or not is not relative to the understanding to the main idea. On the ship or boat or triple meaning of spaceship, he is floating on the blue water which is a material expression of ether created by the aliens, as ether is the compound or element needed for life (as believed by modern scientists). Therefore let's say water is a creation of the Gods, as Genesis speaks of creating the entire world. Let's suppose they also created water. The then walks on the water like Jesus who was an initiate of the Ancient Egyptian hieroglyphs by the way. The then gains the ability to touch upon the knowledge of flight. The temple or holiness of such an acquisition is then portrayed as the health of a demi-God as he inhales the entire aroma of nature. In other words he is now breathing in time with nature. He understands the nature which surrounds him. The next symbols show of the next steps for this demi-god which include going through the stargate which leads him to heaven or paradise which is probably an ancient place called Tula by very ancient cultures which is the center of our Milky Way Galaxy, which by the way emanates very strange energy as measured by scientists. To go much further through a gravitational field which can bend space-time is entirely possible. The destinations and maps of our galaxy and others may be at the doorstep of Tula. To get to the first door is the first step which is shown to us here on Earth. Whether or not the entire universe is mapped out somewhere for us in some ancient text of symbolism is not impossible. In fact the entire star-charts may be included in Egyptian hieroglyphs or the means to find them. To use the astronomical units of measurement ancient Egyptian astronomers used and to equate the measurements of ancient temples with equinoxes which point to different galaxies, and star systems is an indication of the connected possibility that may be the solution as to why they built their temples where they did. On Earth as it is in heaven...

Also to attribute musical notes on a scale to the colors used in hieroglyphs would be interesting. As shades of color are light in different shades. Each color is a note or sound in the musical scale, to visually see and hear what we reading in Egyptian texts might lead to contacting the Ancient Aliens, as the vibrations produced by the sounds might be the songs of wisdom which are the keys which open heaven. Also numbers are associated with color and music. So when deciphering the most important puzzle put forth to humanity we must use a system which is universal. We can count anything, and any race of alien would no doubt need to be able to count. Color and vibration are also universal as the universe is composed of both. Connecting the dots is now the simple child's play which we should do and must do in my opinion when faced with gigantic pyramids and things of wonder. No primitive race could have constructed such marvels of technology and science as well. This fact alone when known is all the reason we need to focus all the Earth's focus on who these beings or people such as in many respects were and where did they come from. Why must we continue to try and compete with these ancient masters of the universe who had much more knowledge and love than us. Since we have seen these pyramids and things of wonder we have been constructing bigger and bigger buildings. What is the point...

Nature is the key to everything. All the forces of nature can be harnessed and used to help us enjoy love and incredible feelings of freedom. Yet we are filled with fear in the knowing of these facts. Each block in the Great pyramid was harmonically shaped, which means that the size of the blocks was deliberate to produce a harmonic resonance. Nothing was left to chance in its construction. It was indeed a perfect construction in the sense that it followed the laws of nature, when nature mixes with nature it can do wonderful things. There is no advantage to doing evil no matter how you look at it. Many people choose to do or act bad just because its cool or it is what everyone else is doing. One thing cannot be two things at the same time. If something is pure green it is pure green pure and simple. Pretending it is not is an illusion which leads us to perceive the color in a way which is not realistic. Such is the same for our way of viewing reality in this day and age, we perceive things as a collective society according to laws and trends which are often false in their premise and even introduced or supported by supposed people of great wisdom and power.

Love and unity and purity are the only motives which lead to happiness, choosing another path may seem right for one reason or another but it never is. No matter who you are you are trying to feel love even in your baddest deeds, whether it be robbing a bank, hurting a loved one or other. Your motives are to in some way balance yourself and feel good again. Sometimes the logic of your actions is more driven towards love and sometimes it is far away from love. Nothing is purely good and nothing is purely evil or bad if you prefer that word. Everything is searching for balance, those who say they are completely balanced could only know that they are because they are often unbalanced and manage to regain balance quickly. The positive and negative, the ying and the yang of the ancients explained how the universe functioned. The positive, negative and the neutral. The positive and the negative find balance through the neutral central point. It helps keep both sides in balance.

